Reds Escape Trap In Viet Lowlands

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops hunted an enemy force in the central Vietnam lowlands south of Da Nang Saturday but it appeared the Communists had slipped the trap after a bloody fire fight in which they took heavy losses, nearly 200 dead.

Part of a new operation called Union Two, the action reflected the increasingly heavy fighting in recent weeks in South Vietnam's northern provinces, where the Communists have deployed large guerrilla and troop forces.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. planes returned Friday to major targets that had been hit before. They logged 99 strike missions. Areas attacked included the Kep and Hoa Lac MIG airfields near Hanoi and two power plants near the port of Hai-phong. One Navy plane was downed, the 561st lost to hostile action over North Vietnam.

Operation Union Two began Friday morning about 20 miles south of Da Nang with helicopter assault landings of about 1,000 U.S. Marines. They were joined by about 2,000 South Vietnamese troops.

The Marines immediately ran into heavy opposition from enemy forces in trenches and other fortifications. The Communists were estimated at 500 or more men and were believed to be a mixed group of the 3rd North Vietnamese Regiment and the 21st Viet Cong Regiment.

They opened up on the Americans with mortars, automatic weapons, rifle grenades and small arms. Fighting raged for several hours Friday and the allies called in air and artillery support.

The Marines moved out again Saturday morning, seeking to catch the enemy between them and South Vietnamese troops in a blocking position. At Que Son, 20 miles south of Da Nang, Marine officers said 172 enemy soldiers were killed Friday and 16 more by an air strike Saturday.

U.S. casualties were put at 28 killed and 76 wounded. Some sharp fire fights but no major battles were reported in other areas of South Vietnam. The U.S. Command described the situation as "fluid" in the region along the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam, where U.S. Marines have repeatedly clashed with North Vietnamese regulars in the past 10 days.

A spokesman said American forces had moved out of the buffer zone but reports indicated that some elements were operating along the demarcation line. The Marines withdrew after gaining a foothold atop Hill 117 during two days of fierce fighting just inside the zone near the Marine outpost of Con Thien.

In Quang Ngai Province, one of the five provinces that make up the embattled northernmost 1st Corps area, South Korean marines reported killing 52 of the enemy in three clashes Friday.

day. Korean casualties were termed light. More than 1,000 South Vietnamese soldiers, supported by armored vehicles, began a sweep Saturday near Hue, capital of northern Thua Thien Province. Sixty of the enemy (Turn To Page Seven)

Caroline Christens The 'John F. Kennedy'

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — President Johnson and Kennedy by the dozen gathered beneath the bow of a colossal aircraft carrier Saturday and a 9-year-old miss christened it the John F. Kennedy in honor of her father.

Caroline Kennedy took two swings before splintering the traditional bottle of champagne on the world's largest conventionally powered aircraft carrier.

Her mother, Jacqueline Kennedy, and her brother, John, 6, were there to help swab champagne from her pretty blue and white dress. Horns and whistles tooted and blasted. The band blared. And high, above, one at a time, in rapid succession, lights spelled out the initials J.F.K. in a copy of the scrawling script of the assassinated president.

Tugs slowly inched the ship into the James River to escort it a mile or so away for a year of outfitting before she joins the fleet.

The 61,450-ton ship is as long as five city blocks, as tall as a 23-story building, its flight deck is big enough for four football fields, and it cost $188.5 million.

In the only speech of the day, Johnson noted that it was Kennedy who asked Congress in 1963 for funds for the ship.

"We pray," Johnson said, "that her years will be years of peace. But if she must fight, both the flag she flies and the name she bears will carry a profound message to friend and foe alike."

Kennedy asked for the money for the carrier, Johnson said, because he understood that strength is essential to sustain freedom and because he recognized that "we cannot afford to mark time or stand in place."

In the course of history, Johnson said, American strength and resolve often have tipped the scales of war against aggressors or would-be aggressors. He (Turn To Page Seven)

Explosion Rips Beirut Embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An explosion shattered windows up to the top floor of the eight-story U.S. Embassy building in Beirut Saturday night.

Corridors inside were littered with broken glass and plaster, but no one was injured. Explosives apparently were thrown against the back of the building, authorities said. The noise of the blast sent apartment dwellers a mile away rushing to their terraces.

Twenty minutes later, another blast in a residential area two miles away left a large hole in the ground of an empty lot but caused no damage.

The attack was the first against an American institution in Lebanon since the Middle East crisis started whipping up anti-American sentiment in this normally pro-Western country.

About 2,000 students demonstrated at Beirut's Lebanese University Friday denouncing American support of Israel.

POPE MAKES PLEA

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI cabled his chief prelates in Cairo and the Holy Land Saturday to tell the Egyptian and Israeli governments of "the absolute need for preserving peace."

A Vatican spokesman said the pontiff, gravely concerned about the war threat in the Middle East, told them he was confident every effort would be made to "save so vital a good peace for all humanity."

The spokesman said the Pope expressed hope that "no incident, even involuntary" would jeopardize peace in the Middle East.

Thant Fears Arab War

Many Doubt U.N. Can Settle Row

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Middle East crisis has produced signs in Congress of growing disenchantment with the United Nations.

While most senators and representatives agree the world body should be given first chance in efforts to preserve peace along the Arab-Israeli borders, there are varying degrees of doubt it can do so.

The withdrawal of a U.N. peacekeeping force from the area just as the crisis developed drew almost unanimous condemnation in Congress.

Many of the calls for U.N. leadership in settling the crisis carry the implied view the ultimate decisions probably will be made in Washington or Moscow, not in the world organization's New York City headquarters.

An indicator of the congressional appraisal of U.N. effectiveness was the declaration by 108 representatives that "war in the Middle East is inevitable unless the United States acts firmly and aggressively to prevent it."

The bipartisan statement made no reference to the United Nations.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the matter is "primarily one for the United Nations."

But if many other members of Congress who said the same thing were looking beyond the United Nations to the United States to make the key decisions, Fulbright suggested that the Soviet Union is in the best position to exercise leadership in the United Nations.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said the withdrawal of the peacekeeping force from the Middle East on the demand of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt might have set a precedent that would hamper future U.N. peace efforts.

Asserting the emergency force had "slipped away like a thief in the night," Dirksen noted.

New Greek Coup Censors Former House Members

ATHENS (AP) — Greece's military government warned former members of Parliament Saturday to stop circulating what it called false rumors of friction between junta members and to cease illegal political activities or face arrest.

In another development, reliable sources confirmed reports that 10 Center Union deputies, close associates of former Premier George Papandreou, were arrested two days ago. The sources said the 10 were accused of conducting a whispering campaign against the regime.

A former private secretary of the 79-year-old Papandreou, Ioannis Manousakis, was reported arrested, presumably for the same reason, five days ago. Papandreou has been detained since the April 21 coup.

The government also arrested Miss Helene Nahnikian, former (Turn To Page Seven)

Rigging Schemes Hinted

Press Wall Street Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal investigators are rapidly expanding their potential explosive Wall Street probe. At least two New York Stock Exchange issues are now under scrutiny along with a group traded on the American Stock Exchange.

Shady nationwide rigging schemes are said by investigators to be costing brokerage firms and investors millions of dollars.

One prober estimated that the reputed manipulators had to have a bankroll of between $1 million and $2 million to mount their activities. Authorities are trying to learn the source of the big money.

Involved in the investigative side are a federal grand jury here, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the major stock exchanges and the Chicago Police Department.

As broadening of the inquiry came to light, it was learned Saturday that:

—Some 20 brokerage house salesmen employed in New York and Chicago by more than a dozen firms, including several with national reputations, are being asked about possible approaches from market riggers offering them cash bribes, or threatening blackmail, to generate customer interest in target stocks. Some have been fired.

—A prominent Chicago broker, partner in a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange, received a telephone death threat after suspending a salesman in his office who has been questioned about possible involvement. The salesman later was reinstated.

These were the latest developments in a year-long chain of events that has included the bankruptcy of one established brokerage firm and a Chicago-style gangland slaying.

The inquiry, in progress for months behind closed doors, will pop into the open soon. The first of a series of indictments is expected from the grand jury here within the next few weeks.

Holiday Death Toll Begins To Mount

CHICAGO (AP) — The Memorial Day weekend traffic death toll rose Saturday night at a rate slightly behind that of last year.

The total reached 165 at 1 A.M. EDT.

The National Safety Council had estimated that motor vehicle fatalities would range from 650 to 750 during the tabulation period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and will end at midnight Tuesday.

At midweek, a council spokesman said the death toll was running 6 per cent behind last year's rate. But he said it was too early to start revising estimates.

Weather was dry and mild across most of the nation in the early hours of the first warm weather holiday period of 1967. Americans will observe Memorial Day Tuesday. But millions of them will be off work Monday, too, and will have a four-day weekend.

The three-day Memorial Day holiday last year set a traffic death record for a Memorial Day observance of any length. The total was 542.

The most recent four-day Memorial Day holiday period occurred in 1961. Motor vehicle fatalities then numbered 462.

To provide a basis for comparison, The Associated Press made a survey of traffic deaths during a recent four-day nonholiday period, from 6 p.m. Friday May 12 to midnight Tuesday May 16. The count was 560.

The record traffic toll for any holiday period was set during a four-day observance of Thanksgiving last year. It was 748.

The high mark for any warm weather holiday was established during a three-day Labor Day observance last year. It is 636.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., said Saturday 76 per cent of 20,000 answers to a poll in his congressional district express dissatisfaction with the Johnson Administration's conduct of the Vietnam War.

At the same time, Anderson said, 65.5 per cent suggested the military pressure be stepped up. Anderson said 71.8 per cent of the returns to date oppose President Johnson's proposal to increase taxes to help offset the budget deficit. The congressman said many letters accompanying the poll replies suggest federal spending be cut.

Although the investigation has focused on Chicago, apparent hub of the alleged manipulations, several investigators reported finding mounting evidence that some of the tactics have become nationwide in scope.

"This is a lot bigger than many people realize," was a comment typical of many voiced by federal regulators and industry leaders.

Already, many are predicting new regulatory or legislative moves aimed at curbing operations of this kind. And only last Friday, the American Stock Exchange announced it will begin issuing weekly and monthly reports designed to help members spot irregular activity in exchange-listed securities.

First public word of investigatory efforts into suspected rigging came April 21 with an announcement from Ralph S. Saul, Amex president. (Turn To Page Seven)

Tells Nations U.N. To Seek Agreement

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant, in a new report to the U.N. Security Council Saturday, said he feared an Egyptian-Israeli clash over shipping rights in the Gulf of Aqaba would plunge the Middle East into a general war.

Thant urged both sides to cool off while the Security Council sought a peaceful solution. And he noted that the Security Council still has the right to order the use of force against any aggressor in the Middle East.

The Middle East was tense but generally calm as U.N. diplomats considered a council meeting on the situation.

After a round of conferences Saturday night by some of the council's 15 members, a U.N. spokesman said it was unlikely there would be a council meeting before Monday.

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt has ordered the Canadian contingent of the U.N. Emergency Force to leave the country within 48 hours, the authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported Sunday.

Al Ahram said the demand was made in a letter Saturday from Maj. Gen. Mohammed Fawzy, chief of staff of the Egyptian army, to Maj. Gen. Indar Rikhye, commander of the emergency force, "because of the Canadian government's pro-Israeli attitude."

Egypt filed a complaint with the Security Council accusing Israel of "repeated aggression" and asked that the charge be considered urgently. Ambassador Mohamed Awad El Kony alleged eight examples of "Israeli aggressive policy" beginning with an attack on the Red Sea coast in 1949 and culminating with "the recent Israeli mobilization." He said the mobilization was "in preparation for an invasion of Syria."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg said: "We are immediately consulting with all Security Council members and others on how the council might as a matter of greatest urgency proceed to discharge its responsibilities for the maintenance of international peace."

He added that the United States concurred with a reaffirmation by Thant in a fresh report to the Security Council that (Turn To Page Seven)

Tempered Rules On Obscenity

The U.S. Supreme Court, with much backing and filling over the past decade, at last seems to be arriving at a philosophy regarding obscenity which, while it will not satisfy everyone, may be the least imperfect solution to this difficult and enduring problem.

Reading between the lines of the court's latest decision voiding obscenity charges brought against a batch of girlie magazines in three states, and in the light of other recent decisions, the following guidelines seem to be emerging:

Censorship or suppression of reading or looking matter sold to adults will be extremely difficult and limited only to the most flagrant cases presenting a clear threat to the health of society.

However, laws designed to keep pornography away from children, or vice versa, will likely be upheld.

But in no event will the court tolerate the "pandering" or high-pressure sale of erotic matter through such means as titillating advertising or unwanted junk mail.

This still does not answer the question of just what constitutes "pornography" or "obscenity," nor why it is permissible to use sex to sell shaving lotion but not magazines. Because the question is probably unanswerable, the court will continue to be called upon for verdicts in individual cases. But these three guidelines seem to be something each community can live with and work with.

Regarding adults, in the continuing absence of any proof that pornography is harmful, perhaps we can safely stop worrying about what people read or view of their own free choice.

In the matter of juveniles of course, there will be the constant problem of the abuse or bending of laws governing what may be sold to them. Yet in every state there are daily violations of laws banning the sale of cigarettes or liquor to minors and no one proposes that these products be outlawed for everyone. With pornography, as with tobacco and alcohol, the responsibility for protecting children is necessarily as much the burden of parents as the police.

This approach to obscenity is a compromise between the greatest possible individual liberty and the preservation of the social fabric. It is an approach which some feel the Supreme Court may eventually decide is the most reasonable one it can take in a free society.

Some Viet Opinions Come From 'Dawks' Or 'Hoves'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Veteran newsmen and ushers around the House and Senate chambers say this "hawk" and "dove" business is really getting out of hand.

Practically every time a congressman or senator takes the floor, and refers to the war in Vietnam in any way, a murmur ripples through the gallery. Visiting Americans, so conditioned to hawk-dove talk, invariably lean toward a gallery neighbor and ask two questions. First: "Who's he?"

Second: "Is he a hawk or a dove?"

Actually, said a former President Kennedy aide the other day, "Hawks and doves are extremes and shouldn't get all the press they seem to command. On the subject of Vietnam, it's the gray area in between 'hawk' and 'dove' where all the important thinking is taking place."

One Washington observer has tackled that "gray area" a couple of times, coming up with crossbreeds, like hawk or dove or hawk-dove-hawk or hawk-dove-dove.

Somebody made the mistake of asking Sen. Ed Brooke, R-Mass., about hawks and doves. "I'm very tired of both terms," Brooke said. "I'm so tired of it I think I'll complain to the Audubon Society."

Sen. Everett Dirksen's office confirmed reports that Old Bobby is miffed about a bill in the Illinois State Senate (passed in the House) that authorizes $75,000 for a bronze statue of him to stand in the state Capitol.

An aide said that the senator asked friends in the Illinois Senate to sit on the bill for awhile. Word is Dirksen said he didn't think it would look so good to have her statue sitting in the statehouse, what with him up for re-election in 1968.

"Well," the aide confided, "that's not all he said."

In Washington politics, they play a funny game called "background briefings."

Somebody important, a senator say, invites a group of newsmen to his office and chats about things and invariably the sessions end, "Gentlemen, this talk is for background not for quoting. If you must quote, use 'high source' or 'spokesman.'"

Sen. Chuck Percy, R-Ill., played the game the other day. But he's new and can be excused for what he did.

At the end, Percy said nothing at all about attribution, so news types asked if it was O.K. to use "high Republican source."

Said Percy, all bright-eyed: "I have an idea. Let's attribute the remarks to me."

Business leaders and government economists got together for the spring meeting of the Business Council down in Virginia recently and out of it came the official word that the Johnson administration has abandoned July 1 as the date for the tax increase. Reasons:

— Trends see the economy as "sluggish" through the third quarter.

— Congress, while showing signs of stirring now, is off to a slow start.

— Consumers aren't parting with the pay check, fearing some sort of collapse. They'll hold off until fall.

But the council predicted that while things now may be slow, everything looks "go" in a few months.

In other words, we're in a boom-slump!

Question For The Protesters

If Not Limited War, What?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A group of war protesters came away from a meeting with Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Scarsdale, N.Y., saying he was plainly prepared to "risk world conflagration."

Obviously there is some risk that any limited war — which the Vietnam conflict certainly is — can flare into general war. But, according to one authority, some 40 limited wars have been fought in the world since 1945 without this happening.

The Scarsdale protesters, to judge from their public comment after seeing Rusk, appear to be arguing that only the United States is taking such a risk in Vietnam. Yet the Vietnamese Communists first took the risk by beginning that war. And, it should be noted, of the 40 limited wars fought since World War II, 23 involved Communist participation. Only three have involved the United States.

If it be argued that no limited war should ever be fought because of the risk of "world conflagration," then the consequent logic is that neither America nor any other free nation should ever resist the piecemeal aggressions of those who are willing to undertake forceful political or military coups.

That logic is, in fact, at the core of the position many liberal opponents hold on the Vietnam war. The various trimming proposals — the demand for negotiations for their own sake, the calls for unilateral ceasefire, the urge for a retreat to defensive enclaves — are all ways of saying that we and the South Vietnamese should stop resisting.

The surely adverse results of such action — the loss of South Vietnamese freedom and a small but significant shift in the world power balance — are clearly deemed by the "stop-the-war" advocates to be of no importance.

By logical extension, they would hold to the same position and attitude with respect to any proposed limited war defense against any other minor aggression which might occur in Asia or anywhere else.

Inasmuch as we have already had some 40 limited wars in the last 22 years, more than half of them involving a force committed to tyranny, it will not do to argue — unprovably — that no such aggressions will hereafter occur.

Nor will it do to contend, as many liberals evidently would like to do, that at no point in a progression of this sort would the world balance of power be tipped against the free nations.

From that point on, the question would quickly become whether any or all free lands could long hope to be masters of their own destiny. And with it would come the question of what to do about it.

The stake would then be survival as free peoples.

Is this, in the minds of liberals who will have us avoid limited war as too risky, the cause that is finally worth fighting for?

If the answer is no, then their judgment is, unmistakably, that freedom is a secondary commodity in human affairs — not worth preserving when the test is had.

But if the answer is yes, then they will have left the free world with only one prospect — to undertake the general holocaust of nuclear warfare in the name of freedom's "survival."

The irony in all this is excruciatingly painful.

Invoking always the "risk of world conflagration" when confronted with the fact or the prospect of limited war, these liberals would have us do nothing until the choice is either world conflagration or surrender to tyranny.

So this country's coterie of protesters, however large or small it may be, is, in ultimate logic, the party of the big war. They would have us fight no other.

Ann Landers:

Recognizes Need To Change

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: What does a woman do when she reaches her 40th birthday and suddenly realizes she doesn't like herself?

I don't like working so hard to be cordial to friends when deep down I resent them for reasons which don't make sense. I don't like the way I have blamed others for my failures. I don't like the casual manner in which I have passed on petty gossip that should have stopped with me.

Is it possible to make one's self over? Could I change? What do you say, Ann Landers? — TOO WELL-KNOWN TO SIGN INITIALS

Dear Well-Known: Of course you can change, and you've already taken the most important step — recognizing the need to change and wishing to do so.

You seem filled with hostility. Do you know why? And toward whom? Talk this out with someone whose job it is to listen. When you unload those ugly feelings you will no longer be compelled to punish your family and friends. You will like yourself better and find it easier to be civil and perhaps even gracious to those around you.

Dear Ann: I love my husband very much, but he is driving me crazy.

Paul is a dentist. He receives dozens of professional journals, advertising flyers and countless boxes of samples and "gifts" from pharmaceutical houses. This junk is sent to his office, but he brings every bit of it home. Every night he hauls in more paraphernalia, and now I can't even set up an ironing board or a sewing machine in what was supposed to be my work room. His library is so crammed full of trash I have given up trying to clean it. He has ordered me not to touch anything. Paul has promised dozens of times to sort things out but he never gets around to it. In the meantime, I am ashamed to have guests over and I'm drowning in junk.

What's the answer? — CROWDED

Dear Crowded: Do you have fire insurance? If you don't have it, you should. Ask your insurance man to look at your place. A call from him might inspire Pack-Rat Paul to get rid of at least some of the junk. If this doesn't work, resign yourself and accept, with grace, that which you cannot change.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 and have no way of earning money for gifts, records, movies and little extras. I spoke to my father about this several months ago. We agreed that I would do certain chores around the house and receive an allowance.

It started out fine but my father has gotten into the habit of borrowing money from me and not paying it back. Right now he owes me $7, and I don't think I will ever see it again.

Do you have any suggestions on how to get him to give me the money? Please don't say I am lucky to have an allowance, because I really deserve it. Thank you. —BROKE

Dear Broke: There's no way I know of to get your $7 back unless your father decides to repay it—and I certainly hope he does. A father who welches sets a mighty poor example. In the future, deposit your money in a savings account where it will draw interest and not be available for "loan."

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Don't Call Them Irresponsible

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My husband is 72, a college graduate, has a sharply brilliant mind — but will not use it for the mundane things of life. He leaves doors and bureau drawers open, lights burning and gas jets lighted. As he's always been careless like this, he is not senile. I hesitate to take a trip to visit my children because I don't know what I'll find when I get home. As a psychologist, please explain his irresponsibility to me.

ANSWER: Oh, please! Will people stop telling me I'm a psychologist? It's the very last thing I am or could want to be. With the exception of a few psychologists here and there, such as Dr. Rollo May, it's a profession for which I feel such prejudice that I have to pray over it. For it includes those people who depend on their tailor's measuring - tape judgments of other human beings — the Intelligence Test people, the Personality Test people.

O.K.? Now I'll be glad to give you my simple - minded writer's view of the "why" behind your bright husband's disinterest in dousing lights and shutting doors.

I expect that he is concerned with other matters. And if you want him changed, the person to write to is a psychologist, not me. For most of the people I love now behave exactly as he does. So I am emotionally disqualified to regard him as anything but a darling.

Yes, ma'am, the people I love no longer remember to douse lights and shut doors. They forget to order food, lock themselves out of their houses and generally carry on like nitwits. But they are not nitwits. Their private housekeeping tidiness has just lost its urgency for them.

And in view of the present state of the world's housekeeping, I regard them as neither irresponsible nor careless. I share their anxiety about the world and so am delighted to shut doors after them and douse their lights for them.

Incidentally, before you write your psychologist, you might read what your Bible says about a woman named Martha in Luke 10:40, etc. So cumbered was this Martha with interest in shut doors and doused lights that she had none left for more important matters.

Bound for the Congo

NEW BERLIN — Shown above are Harvey and LeAnn Waddell with their son, Stephen. The couple hopes to achieve their goal as missionaries to the Congo next year. Mr. Waddell will travel and speak to raise funds to finance their support as recruits in the missionary field.

By GENELLE McCULLOUGH
NEW BERLIN — Harvey and LeAnn Waddell are unique. They are working hard and plan on working even harder to have less of the material things of life.

They are working their way to the Congo. Not to go on Safari, or as pleasure or fortune hunters as many young people their age dream about, but to serve as Christian Missionaries.

Both have dedicated their lives to full-time Christian service, wanting to be missionaries in a foreign field. Their goal will be achieved next year.

Harvey is a native of Alton, Illinois, and received his ministerial degree in 1965 from Lincoln Christian College. While in college he preached at churches in St. Elmo, Greenville and Bible Grove. He has been a minister in full time capacity at the Berlin Christian Church, Berlin, Illinois, the past two years.

LeAnn Hendrick Waddell was born at Washington, Indiana, and has served in many capacities in the church since 1951. After graduating from high school there, she attended Johnson Bible College, transferring to Lincoln Christian College where she met her future husband, and graduated in 1966 with a Christian Education degree. LeAnn also has musical talents with the clarinet, piano and organ.

The Waddells are terminating their ministry with the Berlin Christian Church the first of June as Harvey begins traveling exclusively to raise their support to go as recruits to the Congo. Their home base until the end of the year will be at 425 Holman Avenue, Flora, Illinois, in a trailer home provided for them in her mother's yard. LeAnn and their son, Stephen, now nine months old, will be there most of the time until their departure overseas. And yes, little Stevie is planning to depart for Brussels, Belgium, the first of the year, for a six-month language study of French and two tribal languages — Swahili and Lingala — needed before entering the Congo. Then they will go directly into the Congo to the city of Bukavu.

Their work there will be primarily with youth, evangelism, and education. Harvey, who has wanted all of his life to be a missionary in Africa, has prepared himself well for the work. He has accomplished the talents of mechanics, art, animal husbandry, speaking and ventriloquism. His mechanical knowledge will be put to the task as he helps repair the mission vehicles while LeAnn is teaching the missionary children. No other educational facilities are in the area.

Having just returned from Indiana and Oklahoma commitments, Harvey has been invited into many communities in the central states to fill speaking engagements during the next two months. His entertaining and educational programs cover the work he expects to accomplish in the Congo. His dummy "Ricky" helps to explain the artifacts and other interesting props used in the presentation. No doubt baby Stevie will be pointing out a few of these before long, too.

The Waddells will be depending upon support from the homeland churches to provide their stay while in the Congo. The Christian enthusiasm radiated by the Waddells, in a day of so much material ostentation, is as refreshing as the flowers of springtime.

Beardstown Seeking More Relaxed Image

BEARDSTOWN — Having apparently done everything possible to establish a reputation as "hog butcher of Illinois" on weekdays, Beardstown is getting back to reinforcing its reputation as Fun Capital on Sundays.

For the past several weekends, the town has been packed with bowlers for the annual KC Bowling tournament, and for the past two weeks additional sports fans have been crowding in for drag races.

The Seward Drag strip on the Arenzville road attracted 2,000 people on opening day, and apparently did just as well or better the following Sunday.

In addition to the cars and spectators who crowded into the grounds at $1.50 per person, the Drags had cars parked for more than a mile along each side of the entrance — on both sides of the Arenzville blacktop.

W. L. McGinnis says that at least 10,000 people have been attracted here for the KC tourney — the 25th annual. It started in February and will be concluded in a couple of weeks. More than 500 competed in team events, 200 in doubles and 350 in singles events — some from Iowa and Missouri.

In addition boatmen, fishermen, golfers are busy at their individual sports too.

Davy Crockett was also a politician and served as a U.S. representative from Tennessee for three terms.

North and South might well have gone to four spades with their cards. South would have no trouble making four spades if he could find East with the king of spades because he would be able to draw trumps and eventually discard one diamond on dummy's fourth club.

Three spades was a far better contract but South did not make that either. East's defense was too good.

West opening the eight of hearts. East looked things over carefully and saw that his partner was sure to hold the king of hearts. West would have led the jack from jack-ten-nine-eight. East also saw that he needed to get the lead twice and played his queen of hearts. Then he led back the eight of diamonds. South played the ten and West the jack. Dummy's ace won the trick and the spade finesse was lost. West put East in with the ace of hearts and the second diamond lead gave West two diamond tricks.

"Beautiful defense," said West. "Glad you didn't put me to the test."

"What test?" asked East.

"A real test," said West. "A bad player would have won the first heart with the ace and played the queen immediately. This would have given South his contract automatically. A fair player would have won the first heart with the ace and led the diamond. This play would have given me a chance to underlead my king of hearts when I got in with the king of spades. I'm happy you didn't give me that problem."

Free School Breakfast

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Q—I heard somewhere that children in some schools get free breakfast. Is that true?
A—Yes, it is. The Child Nutrition Act of 1966, passed by Congress and signed by the President last October, authorizes a two-year test of breakfasts in schools with a heavy percentage of needy children, or pupils who travel long distances to schools.

The first breakfast programs initiated under this act were in parts of North Carolina, Wisconsin, South Carolina, New Jersey, Louisiana and Colorado. Sample breakfasts were milk, prunes, scrambled eggs and toast with margarine and jelly; and milk, ½ orange, scrambled eggs and biscuits. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service administers the breakfast programs.

MRS. DUFELMEIER HOSTS ARENZVILLE EXTENSION UNIT

ARENZVILLE — The Monroe Homemakers Extension Unit met at the home of Mrs. Melvin Dufelmeier on Tuesday. Mrs. Jerold Jones was assistant hostess. Members answered roll call by naming "My Favorite Indoor Plant."

Mrs. William Wubker reported on programs to be given during the coming year.

Mrs. Marvin Schnake announced that there will be no training school for new officers this year, but each officer was given a sheet outlining her duties.

An announcement was made of the adoption of a baby son, Michael Eugene, by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Brock. Mrs. Brock was Cass County Home Adviser until the first of this year.

Mrs. Wubker reported on the spring tour sponsored by the County Extension.

The major lesson, "Discipline — What Is It?" was presented by Mrs. Charles Hendrick. Discipline was defined as training for desirable behavior, rather than a way to deal with undesirable behavior. Important factors to keep in mind include taking care of situations as they arise, and helping the child to the stage where he no longer needs external controls to direct his behavior. The ability to decide right from wrong, to think for himself, and to work well with others come from constructive discipline, and enable the child to deal with situations he will face in the world situation.

Mrs. Marvin Schnake gave the special feature, "Salmonella Food Poisoning." Sanitation is the best defense against this bacterial food poisoning, and must be carried out on the farm, in the processing plants, and in the kitchen. Causes and controls of the problem of food contamination were discussed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Russell Nordick on June 27 at 2 p.m.

Shift In Winds Delays Arrival Of Chichester

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—Sir Francis Chichester ran into freakish weather Saturday night, just as he neared the finish line of his epic, 28,500-mile solo round-the-world voyage.

A sudden change of winds slowed his Gipsy Moth IV, which had been making a good seven knots approaching the English Channel, to a mere two knots.

The 65-year-old yachtsman had set midmorning Sunday for his arrival. Thousands converged on this historic port to welcome him.

But at midday Saturday the Royal Air Force reported he was still 146 miles from Plymouth and might not make land until Sunday night or Monday morning.

Weathermen said, however, that northwesterly winds were expected to spring up in the area and these could give Chichester a faster run in.

Chichester Saturday was 118 days out of Sydney, Australia, on his 15,000-mile return voyage around treacherous Cape Horn at the tip of South America. He made the outward trip from England to Australia, around Africa, in 107 days.

Better Prepared As Hurricane Season Nears

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hurricane season begins June 1 and the government's weather watchers say they're better prepared than ever to cope with the problem.

There's still nothing anyone can do to prevent hurricanes—experiments aimed at reducing their fury will continue this year—but the Weather Bureau said Saturday it will be more than ready when Arlene, the name to be given the first storm, begins churning up her winds.

Weather Bureau field offices along the vulnerable Atlantic and Gulf coasts have been holding meetings with business and civic groups to spell out warning details.

Officials said their predictions of hurricane movements have improved steadily over the past 13 years. Hurricane watchers again will rely on the government's weather satellite network to spot young hurricanes and tropical storms in the Atlantic.

Suspicious areas reported by ships, airplanes or satellites will be investigated by Navy and Air Force planes with the National Hurricane Center at Miami directing operations.

Scientists also will attempt to seed hurricane clouds again as part of Project Stormfury, to reduce the intensity of hurricanes.

A tropical storm becomes a hurricane or typhoon as these storms are called in the Western-Pacific when its winds exceed 74 miles an hour.

Although the hurricane season runs from June 1 through Nov. 30, most hurricanes occur in August, September and October. Last year, however, the first one began June 4. The average for a season is 5½ hurricanes.

Eleven tropical storms developed in the Atlantic during 1966 and seven reached hurricane intensity. Only Alma and Inez affected the U.S. mainland, claiming 54 lives and causing damage estimated at $15.5 million, the bureau said.

were reported killed in a three-hour battle with about 500 Communist troops.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker toured the northern provinces and said they would be defended and stay part of an "independent Vietnam." He said he had not heard reports that Hanoi might negotiate peace if it were given part of the northern area.

Bunker said the government's pacification efforts to keep the Viet Cong out of hamlets are being improved. It was his first visit to the area since arriving as ambassador last month. To the south, the U.S. Army reported sporadic contact in a sweep near My Tho, 40 miles below Saigon. Two U.S. helicopters were shot up and a guerrilla fortress area with 41 connected bunkers was found.

Pilots said they destroyed at least three MIGs on the ground at Kep, despite intense anti-aircraft and surface to air missile fire. The runway at Hoa Lac airfield, out of operation after eight previous raids, was reported cratered again by bombs.

Pilots reported heavy damage at the Uong Bi power plant near Haiphong, back in use after being destroyed a year ago, and the Haiphong-West plant.

A Viet Cong mine exploded beneath a crowded civilian bus in South Vietnam's Quang Nam Province Friday, killing nine and wounding 20 persons.

U.N. To Seek

the situation in the Middle East was more menacing than at anytime since the 1956 Suez war when Israeli, French and British forces invaded Egypt in an attempt to seize control of the Suez Canal.

Thant reported to the council on his talks in Cairo last week with President Gamal Abdel Nasser and other Egyptian officials and with Israeli officials at the United Nations.

He proposed to the Security Council that it consider as one move toward peace the formation of a new Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission set up to keep peace after the 1948-49 Arab-Israeli war. The commission went out of existence with the 1956 invasion. Thant held that revival of the commission would restore a U.N. presence to areas of tension.

Thant also reminded the council that under a U.N. resolution approving the 1949 Arab-Israeli armistice agreement both sides are bound by an unconditional U.N. cease-fire order and that the Security Council still retains the right to order the use of force against the aggressor side.

Thant said he had put before both Egypt and Israel "possible steps which could be taken by mutual consent and which would help reduce tension," but he did not elaborate.

The secretary-general said the chief tension point of the crisis is the Gulf of Aqaba, Nasser has proclaimed the gulf closed to shipping to and from the Israeli port of Elath. Israel has said it will fight if the blockade is enforced because the route is vital to its economy.

Egyptian forces command the entrance to the gulf from Sharm el Sheikh, which overlooks the Strait of Tiran. They took over from U.N. forces May 19 after Egypt ordered the withdrawal of all U.N. Emergency Force troops from outposts on the Israeli border.

PRESS CHARGES VS. STRIKING TEACHERS IN NILES TOWNSHIP

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP)—A strike by 200 teachers against three Skokie schools after a Circuit Court order banned the walk-out brought a school board vote Saturday to press contempt of court charges against the strikers.

The Niles Board of Education announced its members endorsed unanimously a resolution to proceed with contempt action against the striking teachers.

The temporary restraining order was obtained Thursday, said Meyer Kamin, president of the board, and the board's attorney, Louis Ancel served the court order at the home of James Friedman, president of the Niles Federation of Teachers Thursday evening.

Friedman said he had not received a copy of the injunction until Friday afternoon.

Kamin released a statement by the board which asserted, "It is paramount that the people who are responsible for the instruction of youth have a duty to uphold the laws of the state. Defiance of these laws by public school teachers demonstrates to the students actions contrary to the principles of public education."

The board and the teachers' union have been in negotiations for a new work contract for four months.

Friedman said that the teachers will decide at a meeting Saturday night what their future course will be.

Grandma's Earrings Back In Style

By VIRGIL REITHER

BEARDSTOWN — Personal adornment has been important since Adam and Eve started it in the Garden of Eden, but styles change from a skein of leaves to hoop skirts and back again in a continuous cycle which involves everything from hats to shoes — and earrings.

The practice of ear-piercing, much in vogue when great-grandmother was a belle, seems to have come full circle and is again a fad in these parts, although some girls are taking advantage of a new type earring which gives the illusion of having been attached to that shell-like little ear in a most cruel way, but actually is just an appendage suspended therefrom.

The use of earrings of one type or another is involved in the earliest types of "dressing up."

Pirates Wore Them

The dark-skinned pirates who plied the Barbary Coasts had ear bands, but even before Captain Kidd and his men held sway, native Africans and Egyptian slaves wore them in an effort to enhance their beauty.

The earring is referred to in Genesis and has been in continuous use in the West by women and in the East as a distinctive evidence of rank.

Plain gold hoops, encrusted pendants and the like were described as exquisite work of the goldsmith's art in Babylonia and Assyria, and in China and Persia the books say that pearls and other jewels were popular.

In years gone by it was a custom to pierce the ears of girl babies so they could wear earrings dangling enticingly, but the style died and now those brave gals who want their ears pierced have to endure a bit of a sting when the job is accomplished.

Few local ladies are old enough to have had their earlobes pierced as a matter of course during childhood.

Do-It-Yourself Project

But a few local people can remember how the piercing was accomplished — not by a doctor — but by anyone who wanted to try it. They just rubbed the ear until it became numb, placed a piece of raw potato behind the ear and aimed a needle and thread, drawing it back and forth to "clear a patch" for the "stem" of the earrings.

Local jewelers used to do the ear piercing when requested to do so.

Mrs. Katherine Leoucis McGuire, who lives at 920 Lafayette street, used to buy and save earrings as a hobby and at one time owned over 300 pairs. She has disposed of all of them but the more valuable pieces which she now keeps in a bank lockbox.

Mrs. McGuire started her hobby in 1916 when the late Gus Applebaum presented her father, Nick Leoucis, with a pair of matched pearl earrings, with instructions they should be presented to Nick's daughter, Kathrine, on her 16th birthday.

Started with Pearls

Mr. Applebaum was a local pearl buyer and selected a truly beautiful matched set of pearls. Mr. Leoucis then decided to provide a pair of ruby earrings and wrote to his native Greece for the jewels. Hundreds of sets of earrings were added to the collection in following years.

Before deciding her time could be better spent, Mrs. McGuire had earrings from England, Italy, Greece, Spain, the South Sea Islands and elsewhere. She had them in gold, silver, glass, onyx, turquoise and about every other stone and gem.

One kind she did not have, however, was the "imitation pierced earring" which manufacturers are now offering in many varieties.

tors said, in part because of cooled metal pots in the composing and stereotyping departments, essential for type and page casting.

Mid-morning found thousands of persons meandering around downtown streets like lost souls. What few shops were opened depended upon candlelight.

The Netherlands-Hilton—29 stories high—and the Sheraton Gibson, the city's two biggest hotels, reported that luckily no one was caught in elevators when the power went off.

The Associated Press' office in the Cincinnati Enquirer Building also presented a strange sight and sound. There was only silence where ordinarily a dozen teletypewriter sets are clattering.

News of the power failure was telephoned to Columbus for relay around the nation.

With all traffic lights out, pleas were made for persons not to drive into the downtown area, but by mid-morning traffic was jammed.

in the Middle East crisis but he wasn't praising the world body by any means.

"Let us see if the United Nations will hold its feet to the fire and do what it was supposed to do when it was set up," he said. "It has never lived up to its responsibilities."

Proposals by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., for preventing a new conflict began with the declaration "the United States must make clear the limits of permissible activity in the Near East." The United Nations was mentioned later.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana recommended leaving the problem to the United Nations and ruling out the prospect of unilateral action by the United States.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., wasn't ready to go that far. Let the United Nations have a chance, he said but "I don't believe we should assure the Russians or President Nasser as to our options."

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma termed the United Nations "our best hope for avoiding hostilities" but other representatives challenged his view that it had been successful in keeping the peace in the Middle East in the past.

said the role never has been an easy one, that it always required strength and patience and "incredible courage to wait where waiting is appropriate, to avoid disastrous efforts to short-cut history."

And it required sacrifice as the price for commitment to ideals, he said. No president understood better than Kennedy the historic American role and purpose, Johnson said, no man knew the burdens of that role more deeply, and no man ever gave more.

"Let this ship we christen in his name," he said, "be a testament that his countrymen have not forgotten."

Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston and a long-time friend of the Kennedy family, delivered the invocation.

Had he lived, John F. Kennedy would have been 50 on Monday. And the man who succeeded him in the White House announced that he signed Friday night a bill making a national historic site of the two-story frame house in which Kennedy was born—at 83 Beale St., Brookline, Mass., a Boston suburb.

The Kennedy family has bought the house and is restoring it to the style of Kennedy's boyhood years there.

This was a day for the Kennedys to overshadow the President in a sense. They had him far outnumbered, for one thing—something like 33 members of the family, from up and down the country, brought by Navy planes.

For Jacqueline Kennedy, it was the first such public ceremony she has attended in this country since the death of Kennedy.

While Mrs. Kennedy is an old hand at ship christenings, it was the first for Caroline. So Caroline was sponsor of the carrier and her mother was the matron of honor.

QUARREL RESULTS IN THREE DEATHS

CHICAGO (AP)—Police reported Saturday that a family squabble ended in triple tragedy with Joseph West, 25; his wife, Lorene, 18, and her mother, Mrs. Clara Dabney, 39, shot to death.

The bodies were found by Lindsey West, a brother of Joseph, Saturday afternoon in a West Side apartment where Joseph and Lorene West had lived.

Police Sgt. Leonard Zaliski said that a pistol was clutched in the hand of Joseph West, and that apparently he had shot the two women and taken his own life.

Reverend R. T. Wofford, pastor of the First Methodist church, will be the speaker at the Winchester City cemetery and Glasgow cemetery. Father James O'Hara will be the speaker at the Catholic cemetery. The American Legion will preside at all three locations.

Local Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the Winchester Grade School Band will meet at the Legion Home at 10:15 a.m. to march in the parade to the City cemetery.

Holiday Schedule

Regular holiday schedules will be observed by the Winchester Post Office on Memorial Day, May 30.

No regular post office window services or delivery services, except special delivery, will be provided.

To Attend Meeting

County Superintendent H. B. Corrie and his assistant, Mrs. Louise Hieronymous, will attend the Illinois School Safety Code meeting for the Region Three County Superintendents of Schools, on June 1, at Vonachen's Junction, near Peoria.

Elmer D. Dalton, supervisor of school buildings for the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction, will discuss the code.

Wartime Pilots Once Trained At Beardstown

BEARDSTOWN — Formation of a new flying club to operate out of the newly opened Greater Beardstown Airport serves as a reminder that this town was a center for one of the Civilian Pilot Training programs a quarter of a century ago.

Dwight Rohn, who now operates the Rhon Flying Service in Peoria, was the guiding light in the government-sponsored local program and scores of men and a few women received their first training here and eventually received their license to operate the small planes of that day.

The airport from which Rohn and his students operated was located across the river in Schuyler County near the Curry farm.

Floyd Taylor, 817 State street, who received his license in 1942 after training in the local CPT, recalls that one of the "graduates" of the school, Harold Fletcher, brother of Harry and Carl Fletcher of this city, went from the small ships he flew here, to the Air Force and the big B29s. Fletcher was shot down over China in WW II, spent 15 months in a prison camp and returned to tell about it. He now lives in California. Willard Huss, another grad, opened an airport on the Arenzville road, which later became the Hood airport.

Taylor says that trainees first took 72 hours of ground instruction, with T. E. McCullough, former BHS instructor, in charge, and then advanced to actual flight training. Sixty-five horse power Aronica planes were utilized in this training.

The program was actually sponsored by the United States Navy and trainees spent hours in ground training, including military drill, and finally were supposed to wind up in uniform with the coveted Navy wings in sight.

The military part of the training for some in Beardstown was conducted by a tough Marine, a hard-boiled sergeant who served in the Philippines. Amos Rhodes.

The course lasted eight weeks, and there were usually eight to 10 men in training. Occasionally a woman joined the ranks—one of those was Harriet Knappenberg, who was a school teacher here.

Teryl Airmans was awarded the "Spoke Award" as the outstanding first-year Jaycee. The "Spark Plug Award" was given to Robert Simons, Jan Franklin, Gary Heberling, Gary Chapman, Robert French, Merlin Hunt, Harold Walker, Gary Dorsey and Daniel Hall, for exceptional service to the club by members of more than one year's standing.

Two new members, Kenyon Lorton and Robert Phares, were accepted and welcomed into the club.

'30 Wonderful Years' Since He Gave Up Crown 'For Woman I Love'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thirty years ago next month, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were married, capping an historic love story. The duke had given up the throne of Great Britain to marry the "woman I love," and then the two went off into exile. In the following rare interview in his apartment high over New York City, the duke now 72, tells of those 30 years.

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON NEW YORK (AP) — In the sun-bathed room overlooking Manhattan, the Duke of Windsor looked back on an extraordinary life.

"These have been 30 wonderful years for me, and it has been the same for the duchess," he smiled, and he placed his half-lensed tortoise shell glasses on the glossy cocktail table before him.

"Life has never been dull. Not a moment."

Everything shone in the sitting room of the Windsors' home away from home high in the Waldorf Towers; highly polished table tops; mirrors; the pair of green porcelain lions flanking a mantel at one end of the large French-style room; vases everywhere filled with red, pink and white blossoms; and the beaming duke himself.

Occasionally, he drew on a pipe. Its aroma mingled with the perfume of the flowers.

The duke had apologies from his duchess, the woman for whom he had given up his throne.

"She is not feeling well this afternoon. We have had a bit too much social life lately, I'm afraid."

Along with numerous charity benefits where their appearance always automatically guarantees success, have been some private parties in advance of their 30th wedding anniversary June 3.

On May 31, the couple will sail for England aboard the liner United States to add a happy chapter to their love story. For the first time since his abdication and their marriage the duchess has been invited to accompany the duke at a royal family function.

They will attend the private unveiling by Queen Elizabeth of a plaque in memory of Queen Mary, the duke's mother. The event will occur June 7 outside Marlborough House where Queen Mary lived.

However, Queen Elizabeth and the duchess have met before, at a hospital following the duke's eye operation two years ago.

At any rate, they will be going home to a new kind of England, a swinging England that gave the world the miniskirt and the Beatles.

"Well, we've seen the uprising of skirts. Up and up they've gone. But they'll be down. They'll have to be."

The duke's blue eyes twinkled.

"I used to strum the ukelele when I was young," he said, shifting his shiny patent leather moccasins on the beige carpeted floor as he recalled another British influence on rock 'n' roll.

"I don't think I could handle an amplified guitar, though."

"I used to do the twist a bit, but I don't care for the newer dances," said the duke, brushing an imaginary fleck off his dark, double-breasted suit. "At a charity dance the other night a young girl across from me said, 'We love the noise.' 'Well, you've certainly got it' I said." His royal highness, now 72, rested his arms on the French chair and mused. "If there's any recompense for growing old, it is what you learn from experience. The trouble is youth won't listen."

"I guess we were rebellious in our way, too, when we were young."

At any rate, the duke could easily empathize with the Beatles, and other popular entertainers plagued by shrieking hysterical teen-agers. Forty years ago the Prince of Wales was dream prince to women of all ages and classes around the world.

In "A King's Story" he is shown on one of his hugely successful world tours shaking hands with his left hand, his right bandaged, out of commission from having been pumped too much.

"I would wish Prince Charles a strong handshaking arm. All my family needs one," the duke said. Other than that he does not care to offer any advice to the heir to the British crown, his grand nephew.

BIG, BUT SMALL EATERS

Ponderous beasts are comparatively light eaters. For instance, a 4,700-pound elephant eats 94 pounds of food a day, or about 20 pounds per 1,000 pounds of body weight; a hippopotamus eats 49 pounds of food daily, or a mere 12 pounds of food per 1,000 pounds of its body weight.

Nutria fur comes from the coypu, a South American aquatic rodent.

FAST AND EFFICIENT CLAIM SERVICEDuck Down For Korea Now Plucked For Viet

By BOB HORTON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some body remembered those tons of feathers bought to stuff bedding removed from stockpiles to be for troops in Korea. So now the old duck down is being plucked for duty in the Vietnam era.

The Pentagon announced the other day a $320,000 contract for 800,000 pounds — that's 40 tons — of "waterfowl feathers to be serviced."

Serviced? That means, the Pentagon said, that the feathers are being processed for use in pillows and sleeping bags.

The General Services Administration, a spokesman explained, piled up millions of pounds of feathers and down years ago, possibly back during World War II, as a contingency stock.

He didn't explain why but presumably this was a safeguard against a duck deficit.

Now 800,000 pounds of feathers are being withdrawn from GSA stocks by the Pentagon to be "dusted, washed and fractionated before stuffing."

That's a sort of toss-and-tumble process which softens up the feathers.

Last June the Pentagon pulled out of GSA piles more than 2.5 million pounds of feathers and nearly 500,000 pounds of down.

The Veterans Administration and the Public Health Service also use large quantities for bedding.

In a public auction in June 1964 the GSA sold off more than 700,000 pounds to private bidders.

GSA figures indicate the government has had as much as 10 million pounds of feathers and down lying around.

OF FUSES, FANS

Heavy demand for household size fuses and electric fans was another side effect of the heat wave and power outage.

The Central Hardware Co. said today that it had an ample supply of fuses in the warehouse, but the heavy demand yesterday resulted in short supplies at many of its retail stores. Many small neighborhood drug stores and groceries were sold out of fuses by late yesterday afternoon.

Katz Drug Store executives said today that they no longer could fill orders for electric fans. Nearly all the chain's retail outlets sold out yesterday and the warehouse supply was exhausted by early this morning, they said.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Sentinel:

The dog law passed by the city council on last Saturday evening imposes an annual tax of $2 for every male and $3 for every female dog. Owners are required to collar the animal and then have it registered. It is made the duty of the marshal to kill dogs that have not been registered. The law goes into effect on the 10th of June.

A small distillery erected some time since by Mr. H. Rephuisky on the lot on which he resides in this city, was this week seized by the inspector and the proprietor arrested on the charge of distilling without license. He was held to answer to the U.S. district court in the sum of $2,000, and the two small stills found on the premises were taken to Springfield. Some thirty barrels of beer were also seized at the same time.

ELDORADO — AGAIN — The proprietress of the Eldorado Restaurant has, through her attorneys, commenced a suit against Mayor Mathers and Marshal Allen individually, for the illegal and forcible entree made by the marshal and police into her bed room, claiming $5,000 damages.

The County Court has been engaged this week in trying the insane patients of the State Hospital, in compliance with Mrs. Packard's law. In many cases physical force has to be employed to get the patients into the presence of the court. We learn that both court and jury are thoroughly disgusted with the ridiculous farce.

The workmen have commenced laying the foundation walls of the splendid new passenger depot to be erected this season by the T. W. & W. R. R. Co. It is being built near the new water tank, just east of Capps factory, and the main thoroughfare to the station will be by way of Church street.

From the Carroll Gazette: The old plank crossings running to the court house yard gates are being torn up and good stone ones taking their place. It has been many a day, and we may say many a year, since our citizens have witnessed such an impetus given to the public improvements of our place.

When in Alton, a few days since, we had occasion to stop at the Franklin House, and although late for dinner, we were well entertained and our stay was quite pleasant.

We have the premium list for the next Greene County Fair for publication, and a few pages will be left for advertisements. Parties desiring to make their business public through this medium, should apply at once. Price for full page $5, half page $3, fourth page $2. There will be not less than one thousand copies printed, and they will be distributed throughout the county.

From the Beardstown Central Illinoisian:

EXTRA SESSION — Gov. Oglesby has finally issued his proclamation convening an extra session of the Legislature, and the Secretary has notified each member to be in his place on the eleventh day of June. This gives some one an opportunity to grind his ax, and as we have none to grind, of course we are "ferriest" extra sessions, at such enormous expense as this one will cost. They meet often enough during the regular session without putting on any extras about it.

The weather has been decidedly bad for the past week. Notwithstanding the sloppy condition of the roads, a large number of teams have been in every day, loaded down with grain.

Roast beef at eighteen cents per pound is about as high as it gets to be here, unless the animal undertakes to jump a stake and rider fence.

A portion of the beauty and intelligence of this goodly city ventured upon an excursion last week, the main object of which was to see the world renowned, legendary drama entitled "Black Crook," now being performed in St. Louis.

They made choice of the splendid Steamer Illinois as the medium of conveyance and the entire trip was one of unmingled pleasure.

Should our citizens wish to see this performance, they may save time by taking the Steamer Illinois tomorrow (Friday) afternoon, arriving in St. Louis Saturday morning by daylight, attend half a day to business, see the performance in the afternoon, and leave on the Illinois in time to reach home in time for church Sunday morning.

DOMESTIC

While the Government tax on whisky is $2 a gallon, the article may be bought for $1.50 a gallon. It is evident, therefore, that the government does not collect its tax, and the question arises whether it would be better for all parties to so diminish the tax that honest men could afford to pay it.

The latest bugbear discovered by the Southern press is the danger of what they call a "war of races." One would suppose that the whole tribe of Southern political prophets would learn from the events of the last five years that their most important duty was to keep still, and mind their own business, but it seems that the most difficult task of Southern reconstruction is to reconstruct the Southerners.

A gang of pickpockets on a Third avenue car, recently beat the conductor with a slung shot, for trying to arrest one of them, whom he caught in the act of taking a passenger's watch. The police were, of course, not to be found. Things are rapidly coming to such a pass that a ride up town will be as dangerous as a journey across the Great Plains.

The owner of a tenement house, who refused to put a fire escape upon it, was recently fined and sent also to the penitentiary for a month. This is a step in the right direction; let us continue in this path, until the owners of unimproved and badly improved real estate in this city are so properly while they keep their property in this condition that they will find it for their interest to either improve it or sell it.

There is power to remove forcibly bone-bolting establishments from the city limits, and the same thing should be done with the large majority of our tenement-houses, which are greater public nuisances.

HUMORS of the day

May, 1867

At a recent railroad celebration the following sentiment was given: "Our Mothers — the only faithful tenders who never misplaced a switch."

Jones, who is engaged in the real-estate business, was riding along one day, when he saw this sign: "This farm for sale." Seeing a woman pick up an apron of chips at the wood-pile, he politely asked her when the farm was to "sail."

"Just as soon as the man comes along who can raise the wind."

Why cannot you insure the life of the French Emperor? No man can make out his policy.

When an extravagant friend wishes to borrow your money, consider which of the two you had rather lose.

FOREIGN

May, 1867

The tin trade of Cornwall is exceedingly depressed, and the reason given for it is the discovery of tin in the Dutch Island of Banca.

Arrangements have been made by which workmen from all countries in Europe can go in bodies to the Great Exhibition, and enjoy a week or more in Paris at very small expense.

Cruikshanks, the artist, gets an annuity of ninety-five pounds a year from the recent distribution of the privy purse fund.

A Mr. Layard and a Mr. Lewis, both members of the House of Commons, had recently a vituperative match on the floor of that Assembly, which, in its disgraceful character, is said to have been such as would surpass even a similar scene in the hall of our Common Council. And yet we are constantly hearing of the superior dignity of English Legislative bodies as compared with our own.

BEDE'S MAP, 27-foot-long, unrolled here on a wing, appears on a continuous roll inside the cockpit.

A New 'Lone Eagle' for '67

A number of planned objectives have been set for James Bede's solo nonrefueled flight around the world in a single-engine converted sailplane. One is fulfillment of a lifelong dream for the 34-year-old Cleveland aeronautical engineer. But the long flight may also be a proving ground in the study of human and equipment endurance over the 24,800-mile trip.

SUPPORT WHEELS shown in the test flight above protect the 63-foot wing span from damage during take-off. The craft carries 565 gallons of fuel, shown below, for the nonstop trip from Cleveland to Cleveland, around the globe. The flight is expected to take about 6½ days, with Bede catching two-hour naps before being awakened by an alarm system. The cockpit, below left, will provide room for him to stretch out, and even do push-ups for exercise. Space officials are interested in seeing how a man of average physical condition can withstand the rigors of extended flight.

Lindsay Getting Film Industry Money, Jobs Back To New York

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the story of a struggling young mayor, John V. Lindsay — you loved him in "Fun City!" — and how he won the love of the movie producers (a cast of thousands direct from Hollywood!).

It's a $20-million epic and it's being filmed right on the streets of New York.

In the first half of this year at least 25 motion pictures will be filmed entirely or in part in New York. That's more than in all of last year and twice as many as in 1965.

By the time Lindsay took office on the first day of 1966 the movie and television film industry had largely fled New York. Lindsay blamed this on city policies that were "unnecessarily complicated, vexatious and time-consuming."

He promised to woo the movies back to New York. It meant money, it meant jobs and it meant good publicity for the city. Movies made here last year brought $20 million to the city — an amount expected to be equaled in the first half of this year.

In getting the producers back to New York "there were two basic problems," said Barry Gottehrer, who acts as the mayor's liaison to the movie industry.

"First of all, the producers said the city was impossible — there was a multitude of permits, and payoffs and censorship," he said. "And second, they said the unions were difficult. They said it cost about 25 per cent more to make a movie here than in Hollywood because union scales were higher."

Lindsay took the first step on May 31, 1966, with an executive order. This set up a "one-stop" service for permits and did away with fees; directed all city departments to cooperate with movie-makers; set up a special police task force to help every movie crew, and eliminated censorship of scripts.

Next, Lindsay went to work with the unions, spending months persuading them to agree to a one-year experiment. In mid-March of this year the twelfth and final union agreed.

At a City Hall news conference, Lindsay announced that the unions would "grant special consideration in regard to rates and regulations" to producers who agreed to film entirely in New York.

In return for the Hollywood scale the producers must agree to this credit line: "Filmed in New York."

Is the plan succeeding? The ever-growing number of movies being filmed here speaks for itself. So do the producers.

"I can't wait to go back to Los Angeles and tell them about it. Shooting in New York is so much better now that it's like night and day," said Irving is bringing increased film activity — and the usual influx of tourists. The city hopes to tie the two together.

Temaner, production manager for "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

"We're promoting the idea that at the height of the tourist season people will be able to see stars like Julie Andrews, Kirk Douglas, Henry Fonda and dozens of others making movies on the streets," Gottehrer said.

Lindsay, an irrepressible and not untalented ham, shows up every time a film crew begins location work.

On one occasion Lindsay pretended to jump from the Manhattan Bridge, while Jack Lemmon and Peter Falk, the stars of "Luv," held him back.

The city's goal is a "cinema city" incorporating in one location facilities for every phase of movie production. Two groups are said to be considering putting up the $50-million needed for the production center.

ATHLETES MUST PAY PRICE TOO

Most sports fans are under the impression that the life of a professional athlete is great, and it wouldn't be bad at that. But, as in all fields of endeavor, it has its drawbacks.

While most pro performers draw salaries well above the average, travel first class and are idolized by thousands, they also must pay a price and they should expect to do so.

We're speaking of their performances and conduct on and off the field, floor or court. Being in the public eye may be great, but it takes special consideration and special behavior.

DID YOU ever notice how any incident, no matter how small, involving athletes, as well as other professions in the public eye, are played up by the press? Did you ever wonder why?

The answer is simple: these people are news and what they do is news. It's news because the public expects performance and conduct from them above and beyond what the public expects of itself. Just let an athlete or performer or politician get caught outside the straight and narrow and he's a marked man.

Examples are in the papers and on radio and television every day. No one every argued about Cassius Clay's ability in the ring (well, fighting ability that is), but he was and is not at the top of the popularity charts.

MAJOR LEAGUE players in any sport are expected to conduct themselves like gentlemen everywhere. That means no smoking, drinking or cursing while in public, although they have the same urges as the next guy. And, we're not letting any secrets out of the bag when we say they are human too and have human weaknesses.

Do you think the athletes and coaches involved in the recent University of Illinois slush fund scandal are not marked men for the rest of their lives? Of course they are, and we are not contending they were guilty or deserved punishment. The name Pete Elliott or Sam Price ten years from now will probably bring only one thing to mind.

Now, we know this is straying from the professional angle, but the same is true in college and even high school sports. The athlete is looked upon to be something special and to conduct himself accordingly.

PROBABLY the biggest reason the public demands so high in this respect is the effect the athlete has on the youngsters who set their heroes on a pedestal. While John Q. Public pays his buck to see someone hit a ball farther than he can, he also expects that athlete to conduct himself a bit better than he is perhaps capable of doing, or wanting to do.

While this may seem like expecting too much of someone who is human but is just physically better endowed, the long range effect has some mighty good results.

All coaches from grade school through the professional ranks constantly preach that athletes are expected to put their best face forward. Sportsmanship and conduct are vital parts of any athletic philosophy, and, we believe, have shaped the personalities of many young men.

ON THE other hand, it is perhaps too harsh to condemn an athlete for having a smoke or a drink when he has reached the maturity of the professional level. We agree, however, that once an athlete puts a number on at any age level, he should realize he is representing a school or a city and act accordingly.

As for the professionals, about all that can be said is that they have to pay the price. If they aren't willing to meet the demands made of them they should be willing to accept the consequences.

YOU MAY remember last year about World Series time an eastern broadcasting company hit upon an idea of a "Dream World Series." It received considerable press coverage around the country and was generally regarded as a rather unique and interesting idea.

The "series" was handled this way: voting determined the lineups for American and National League teams, consisting of the greatest players at each position. These players' lifetime performances were fed into an IBM computer which then used all pertinent data to actually "play" a seven-game series. The games were broadcast just as though the game was life.

THERE ARE some new twists this year. Veteran major league managers will actually interject human decisions between each play. The computer will be interrupted after each batter and the manager for each team will get the chance to introduce a pinch-hitter, make a defensive substitution or change pitchers.

We have to agree this should prove quite interesting for the strong baseball fans, but it's still not going to solve any arguments as to which era had the greatest ball players.

ANOTHER interesting point came from the 30 players chosen for each team, three at each position and six pitchers. In the AL the only players nominated were Mickey Robinson, Phil Rizzuto, Yogi Berra, Ted Williams, Mickey Mantle, Joe DiMaggio and Bob Feller. In the NL the only recent picks were John Mize, Jackie Robinson, Red Schoendienst, Ed Matthews, PeeWee Reese, Roy Campanella, Stan Musial, Ralph Kiner, Willie Mays, Duke Snider, Hank Aaron, Sandy Koufax and Warren Spahn.

THOSE CITY and area youths who are planning to attend the Frank Long basketball camp starting June 5 and have not filled out an application should do so at once. Long, the Jacksonville High school coach, reports that about 30 youths have applied thus far and he would like to have about 20 more. Applications may be obtained at most local and area schools, or from Long. The camp runs four weeks, with two-hour sessions each day. The cost for the entire four weeks is $30. There is also a possibility that whole or partial scholarships paying the cost for those unable to afford the amount will be available. Details may be obtained from Long.

FORMER JHS athlete Barry Heaton has taken the head basketball and track coaching position at Pano. Heaton spent the last two seasons as basketball coach at St. Elmo.

Crimsons Capture Loop Golf Crown

DECATUR — The Jacksonville High school golf team wrapped up an outstanding season Saturday by mosing out Decatur MacArthur by a single stroke and capturing its fourth straight Capitol Conference crown, at Faries Park.

Final team scores were Jacksonville 318, MacArthur 319, Decatur Eisenhower 326, Springfield Grisen 336, Springfield Feitshans 345 and Springfield Lamphier 346.

The Crimsons, who tied for third in the state meet last Saturday for the highest finish ever by a JHS team, were led by individual medalist Greg Neff. The senior fired a 77 over the par 72 course to nose out two opponents and a teammate for top honors.

Jim Cisne of Jacksonville, Raoul Goretzke of Feitshans and Steve Moore tied for second with 78's, with Goretzke taking second and Cisne third in playoffs.

Other Crimson scores were Barry Bringham 81, Tor Duweier 82, Jim Dowland 82, Fred Grant 82 and Steve Turner. Only the low four scores were counted in the final team scores.

RECORD BREAKER Peter DePaolo will be remembered in Indianapolis 500 history as the man who cracked the 100-miles-per-hour barrier. He did it in 1925, the year he won the race.

Indy Holds Memories For DePaolo

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (NEA) — Pete DePaolo is 70 now, an age at which most goals either have been realized or pathetically shattered.

It has all turned out well for Pete. He has his health and a couple of homes in Dearborn, Mich., and Newport Beach, Calif.

Now there's only one real goal left. "I told Tony Hulman (president of the Indianapolis Speedway) that eight years from now I'm going to be at Indianapolis for the golden anniversary of my win in the 500," Pete said. "All I want to do is drive the pace car and then sing 'Back Home in Indiana'."

Pete DePaolo's victory came in 1925 and always will be remembered because he was the first driver to shatter the 100-miles-per-hour mark in the 500.

Old-timers around the speedway still remember that day when Pete had to use his relief driver, Norman Batten, for 21 laps so he could take time out to have his blistered and bleeding hands bandaged.

Then he climbed back into his yellow and black Duesenberg and crossed the finish line with an average speed of 101.13 m.p.h.

To Indianapolis, it was like the day Lindbergh crossed the Atlantic and the day Roger Bannister broke the four-minute mile.

"At that time," Pete said, "100 m.p.h. was unheard of. Now this year," he continued, "hesitating for a moment to shake his head unbelievably, 'Mario Andretti is on the pole with 168.982 miles per hour. It's fantastic.'"

The Indianapolis 500 is a major part of Pete DePaolo's life, as well as his family's. His uncle, Ralph De Palma, won the race in 1915 and a few years later gave Pete his start in racing. Pete didn't disappoint the family.

"My first race was at the Beverly Hills Speedway," Pete said. "The entrance to the speedway is the front door of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel now. In those days, Wilshire Boulevard was nothing but a bunch of beanfields. That was a long time ago."

"I still come back to Indianapolis every May. I haven't missed a race since 1920. I wait for it every year."

Indianapolis—and the racing fraternity—also waits for Pete. "It's amazing," he said. "No matter where I go, everyone remembers that I was the first driver to break 100 miles an hour. It almost seems that it has more significance today than it did then."

Eight years from now, it will have even more significance. "I'm not kidding about singing, when I come back for 1975," he said. "I've got a good voice. When I was a kid in Roseland, N.J., the mayor heard me in the church choir and told my mother he would pay to send me to Italy to study opera at La Scala."

"But the war came along. I went into the Air Force as a mechanic, then after it was over, joined my uncle Ralph as his mechanic. A few years later, I was driving myself."

So opera fans never heard Pete DePaolo's "La Boheme."

Indianapolis, however, will hear his "Back Home in Indiana" on Memorial Day 1975.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Deron Johnson, Tony Perez and Tommy Harper hammered home runs behind the five-hit pitching of Milt Pappas and league-leading Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 6-1 Saturday night, snapping a three-game losing streak.

Harper led off the third inning against loser Juan Pizarro, 3-4, with his fourth homer and after Tommy Helms singled, Johnson drilled his eighth homer.

Perez, hitting in his 13th straight game, cracked his ninth homer in the seventh after Pete Rose tripled, extending his hitting streak to 22 games. Johnson drove in another run in the ninth with a single.

Pappas yielded only Roberto Clemente's ninth homer in the fourth as he won his fourth game in six decisions. He struck out seven and did not allow a walk. It was Pappas' first complete game of the season.

Frank Robinson Smacks 2 Homers In 10-0 Shutout

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson smacked a pair of two-run homers Saturday night, powering the Baltimore Orioles and rookie Tom Phoebus to a 10-0 victory over the faulty-fielding Boston Red Sox.

Phoebus, a 25-year-old right-hander allowed 10 hits in hurling his second successive shutout and his fourth in five major league victories since last September.

Robinson's homers — which gave him an American League-leading total of 12 — came after run-producing singles by Brooks Robinson in the first and fifth innings.

The second circuit clout, which finished loser Darrell Brandon, traveled some 430 feet.

Baltimore scored seven runs, four of them unearned on three Boston errors, while sending 11 men to the plate in the fifth. Luis Aparicio capped the rally with a two-run double off Bill Landis, the third pitcher in the inning.

The Red Sox, who committed six infield errors, had numerous scoring chances against Phoebus but left 10 runners stranded.

Buckeyes Gain College Series With 5-4 Verdict

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Bruce Heine laid down a 10th-inning bunt with the bases loaded to drive home Denny Jacobs as Ohio State chipped out a 5-4 victory over Western Michigan in the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's district 4 playoffs Saturday.

The victory earned Ohio State the right to move on to Omaha, Neb., for the NCAA's college world series June 12-16.

The victory went to lefty Mike Swain. Another left-hander, Western Michigan's Eric Hall took the loss.

Heine's perfect bunt followed a walk, a two-base error on the pitcher and an intentional pass. Western Michigan beat previously undefeated Ohio State 5-4 earlier in the day to make the second game necessary.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of Bobby Wine's two errors for four unearned runs and scored another on a wild pitch as they stopped the Philadelphia Phillies 11-4 Saturday.

Wine opened the door in the third inning to three Cardinal runs on a bad throw. Lou Brock singled home a run and later scored on an infield out before Alex Johnson singled home the third run off loser Grant Jackson.

Singles by Orlando Cepeda, Johnson and Ed Spivey produced another run in the fifth and Brock scored on a wild pitch in the sixth before Wine bobbled a grounder in the seventh, leading to Dal Maxvill's run-scoring safety.

The Cardinals, leading 6-4, wrapped up the contest with two runs in the eighth and three in the ninth.

Don Lock doubled home the first Phillie run in the fifth and they knocked out winner Larry Jaster in the sixth with three runs as Wine and Tony Gonzalez singled home runs and a third scored on an error.

Indians Rally For 5-3 Margin Over Yankees

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pedro Gonzalez' run-scoring double and Leon Wagner's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the seventh inning sparked the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday night.

Larry Brown smacked an insurance homer in the eighth for the Indians, protecting right-hander Sonny Siebert's fourth victory in seven decisions.

Mickey Mantle's 10th homer put the Yankees ahead 3-2 in the sixth.

In the seventh, however, Gonzalez' double, following singles by pinch hitter Jose Vidal and Chico Salmon, delivered the tying run against reliever Steve Hamilton. Chuck Hinton was purposely passed, filling the bases, and Wagner tied to right fielder Steve Whitaker, with Salmon scoring after the catch.

Fred Whitfield hit a bases-empty home run for Cleveland in the second and Max Alvis homered in the fourth to tie

10 Unearned Runs

Errors Allow LA To Rip Giants 10-5

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Al Ferrara, turning from goat to hero, tripled home two runs in the seventh inning, sparked the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 10-victory over San Francisco Saturday in a game marred by 10 unearned runs.

Ferrara, whose error in the third inning helped the Giants to four unearned runs and a 4-4 tie, sliced his triple to right field, putting the Dodgers ahead 6-5.

They added four more runs in the last two innings as Wes Parker and Dick Schofield each singled home two.

Don Drysdale, 5-3, snapped a personal seven-game losing streak against the Giants, dating back to May 8, 1965, by winning his fourth straight game with relief help from Ron Perranoski in the eighth.

Wind gusts to 45 miles per hour and bright sun played havoc as fly balls became extra base hits and the Giants made five errors, the Dodgers three.

A double error by Jim Hart let in two runs, a wind-blown triple by Jeff Torborg set up another and Ferrara singled home a fourth as the Dodgers took a 4-0 lead.

Redlegs Strand 13, Beaten 2-1 In Tournament

DECATUR — The Jacksonville Redlegs stranded 13 men and gave up two unearned runs as Decatur Riley's pinned a 2-1 loss on the locals in the Memorial Day weekend tournament Saturday night.

The Redlegs had men on second and third with no outs in the second and fourth innings and the bases jammed in the fifth with no outs and failed to score. The lone Jacksonville tally crossed in the top of the seventh when Gary Spangenberg, Bob Speaks and Fred Curtis walked with two away and Bill Oldenettel singled. Riley's hurler Bob Moore then fanned Joe Cors for the final out.

Moore whiffed ten but walked nine for the winners, while losing hurler Bob Vinyard fanned six, walked two and gave up only three hits.

The winning run scored in the Decatur sixth when Oldenettel made an error and Ed Walters tripled.

The Redlegs will now meet the winner of the Springfield Quality Furniture-Pittsburg Glass game at 10 a.m. Sunday in the double elimination affair. The loss drops Jacksonville to a 3-4 record.

Skating Blades Mean Freedom To Former Czech

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a long way from an overcrowded attic in Communist Czechoslovakia to a swank suite in the Waldorf-Astoria, but Aja made it on a pair of flashing ice skating blades.

"Capitalistic living? I love it!" Aja Zanovska said as she shipped coffee from a dainty china cup and polished her ankle-length white skating shoes in her plush hotel quarters.

Miss Zano, a 5-foot-8, 135 pounds, a statuesque brunette with hazel eyes—is the star of the Ice Capades, the ice show which pitches camp between home plate and third base at Shea Stadium June 1-8.

Twice winner of the women's world figure-skating championship in 1949 and 1950, she defected from her Red-led homeland and joined the pro troupe, where her earnings are estimated in six figures a year.

It hasn't always been a wonderful life.

Aja is the daughter of the former Minister of Finance in Prague during the Beneš democratic government prior to World War II. Her family lived in a big house on a lot of land. She rode horses. She played tennis. She skated.

Then war broke out. The goose-stepping Germans moved into Prague.

"I shivered with fright every time they came near. I always was afraid one of them would grab me," she said.

Then the war took a turn. Russians, in their heavy gray coats and red hammer and sickle insignias, replaced the Germans.

"I had learned to skate when I was five," Aja said. "Because I was a champion skater—I had more than 100 trophies which since have been confiscated and put in a museum in Prague—they let me travel."

"But I was constantly harassed. Two men—grim secret police—were with me always, keeping me from talking to Americans and Canadians or people of the Western world. After winning in England, I hid out and managed to escape. Then my mother escaped. She now is a music teacher in Los Angeles, using the name Ina Zav. My father still is in Prague."

Aja joined the Ice Capades, but her life wasn't free of terror.

"People were always calling me, threatening to kill me, my mother and father unless I went back," she said. "Once in a hotel lobby in Montreal two men put a gun to my back and started to take me away. Luckily, some of the skating troupe came by and I got away."

SWAN SONG is the title and Harry Walker, Pirate manager, and Maury Wills, behind him, the vocalists. Umpire Paul Pryor started the songfest by throwing Wills out of the game. Walker came to the aid of his third baseman. As always, it was in vain. One thing is certain, though, Wills and Walker are in perfect unison.

Astros Tip Cubs, 2-1, On 3 Hits

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Wynn drove in two runs with a single and his seventh homer and Mike Cuellar hurled a three-hitter as the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 2-1 Saturday.

Wynn drove in the first run of the game with a third inning single off loser Curt Simmons after Joe Morgan walked and took second on an infield out.

After Ernie Banks tied the score with a hit in the third, Wynn drove his two-out homer into the left field bleachers into the teeth of a 24-mile-an-hour wind.

Cuellar, winning his fourth game against two losses, struck out six and walked three.

The only other hits off Cuellar were a single by Billy Williams in the first inning and a bunt single by Adolfo Phillips in the second. The hit by Banks followed a walk to Paul Popovich and an infield out and extended Banks' hitting streak to 10 games.

Ashe Salvages Split For U.S. At Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — American ace Arthur Ashe coolly, deftly salvaged a 1-1 split for the United States in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup North American tennis final Saturday, blasting out a rain-plagued 7-5, 6-2, 7-5 victory over young Marcelo Lara.

Mexican veteran Rafael Osuna won the first of the day's matches, rallying during a downpour for a 6-3, 4-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-1 decision over Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex.

Ashe, an army lieutenant from Richmond, Va., had more trouble with the weather than he did his 19-year-old opponent. They were delayed starting and the first set was interrupted for another 26 minutes by a second rainstorm that drenched the wildly partisan crowd of about 5,000.

The Americans are heavily favored in Sunday's doubles, with Clark K. Graebner Beachwood, Ohio, and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., going against an unnamed Mexican pair.

Unnamed officials preferred to exercise the prerogative of waiting until two hours before the match to name their team.

The final singles in the best of five set will be played Monday with Ashe facing Osuna and Richey playing Lara in a possible decisive battle of the babies of the two teams.

The winner goes against the winner of the Ecuador-Argentina match in the American Zone final. Ecuador leads 2-1 in the matches at Buenos Aires.

The 19-year-old Richey said he played well in his loss to Osuna "but Osuna got better."

"I missed several volleys after leading two sets to one and Osuna gained confidence. In the fourth and fifth sets I played real well but Osuna got better."

The 28-year-old Osuna was inhaling oxygen during the changeovers in the late going, but rallied from two sets down, polishing off the young American in a fiercely played fourth set and routing him in the fifth.

4 Former Winners In Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Thirty-three veteran speed competitors, including five Europeans of the Grand Prix circuit, will charge Tuesday into the 51st 500-mile auto race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

They'll be putting their lives on the line for a purse of about $700,000 and entertainment of possibly 350,000 speed buffs.

The field includes four former winners—Graham Hill of England, 1966; Jim Clark of Scotland, 1965, and Americans A.J. Foyt, 1961 and 1964, and Parnelli Jones, 1963.

Also included is the spectacular Italian-born Mario Andretti who has broken the 10-mile qualifying record for three straight years, with a new mark of 168.982 this year. He has yet to win the 500 although he has held the U.S. Auto Club national title two straight years.

Andretti was a heavy favorite to run off from the field last year and was doing it until he broke a valve. A first lap pileup wiped out one-third of that field and only a record low number of seven cars were still running when Hill took the checkered flag.

Situation Complicated

Andretti has plenty of backers again this year but the situation is complicated by the first turbine car to qualify, Jones' STP, Pratt & Whitney. It qualified sixth fastest at 166.075 in spite of an ailing gear box.

Jones' practice runs with full loads of fuel indicated he plans to run almost as fast in the race as his qualifying speed. That's possible because the turbine will be using its qualifying, jet aircraft fuel, while the piston engines will have to be fed less potent mixtures than high explosive combinations used in the short trials.

The race record is 150.686 m.p.h. by Clark in 1965. Hill's average for last year's wrecked race was 144.317. This year's field qualified at an average of 164.173, breaking the '66 record of 160.251.

Moffitt, Casals Triumph Easily In French Meet

PARIS (AP) — The top-seeded Mrs. Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., and fifth-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco won easily Saturday, giving the United States six women in the third round of the French International Tennis Championships.

With leading U.S. men players involved in the Davis Cup competition in Mexico, America's hopes of a title rest with the ladies, particularly Mrs. Moffitt, who is holder of the Wimbledon crown.

Billie Jean, almost errorless from the back court and deadly at the net, needed only 35 minutes to dispose of Carmen Coronado Mandarino of Spain 6-1, 6-0. The pint-sized Miss Casals, bashing every ball, scored over Chantal Langanay of France 6-3, 6-4.

Slate Hearing In Clay Appeal

HOUSTON (AP) — A hearing at 10 a.m. June 9 has been set by U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham on the government's motion to quash subpoenas which lawyers for Cassius Clay plan to use to compile an encyclopedic defense in the fighter's draft dodging trial June 19.

Ingraham already has granted the boxer's defense team permission to subpoena records and statements from high government officials, including President Johnson. The defense lawyers plan to present Clay as a draft-exempt Muslim minister who boxes as a paying hobby and to show the Selective Service System as unfair to Negroes.

Clay, 25, refused induction last month in Houston, his adopted hometown. He was stripped of his world heavyweight title.

Luplow's Single Lets Mets Win 4-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Luplow punched a bases-loaded single through the middle of the infield Saturday, driving in two runs and propelling the New York Mets to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves had a 3-2 lead before Bud Harrelson started the winning rally with his third hit of the day, a single leading off the seventh. He went to second and Ed Charles reached first on a throwing error by Joe Torre when Charles dropped a bunt in front of the plate.

Both moved up on a sacrifice and Tommy Davis drew an intentional base on balls, setting it up for Luplow's winning blow.

A Clete Boyer double and Marty Martinez' single got Atlanta's first run, in the third, and an error and Rico Cart's run-scoring single put across two more in the fourth.

Harrelson's double and Jerry Buchek's single produced the Mets first run, in the first, and singles by Davis, Buchek and Johnny Lewis got the other in the sixth.

Senators Strike For Six In 1st For 8-1 Triumph

DETROIT (AP) — Tim Lullen capped a six-run explosion in the first inning with his second hit, a two-run single, and the Washington Senators went on to whip Detroit 8-1 Saturday behind the seven-hit pitching of Camilo Pascual.

The Senators jumped on Detroit starter Mickey Lolich for five straight hits and continued the first inning assault against relievers George Korince and Johnny Klippstein.

Lullen, who had four straight hits, started the rally with a single.

Ken McMullen and Frank Howard drove in runs with singles. Paul Casanova brought in another on a sacrifice fly and Ed Brinkman walked with the bases loaded before Lullen's second hit.

Pascual, picking up his fourth victory in six decisions, gave up an unearned run in the seventh on Bill Freehan's double, an error by Lullen and Don Wert's single.

Oklahoma City Open Tourney In 3-Way Tie

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Little Gary Player, the black knight of golf's fairways, Cinderella Dave Stockton and consistent Miller Barber charged into a three-way tie Saturday for the third round lead of the Oklahoma City Open.

The three had six-under par totals of 210.

Player ripped off a five-under 67, missing a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th green which would have given him the lead.

Stockton, a 25-year-old who won last week at Colonial, scattered his drives all over Quail Creek Golf and Country Club but used just 28 putts as he cracked down on the greens.

Barber and Stockton had been tied for the lead after 36 holes and both had four-under 68s Saturday.

George Archer, with birdies on the last two holes, was one stroke back with a total 221. Kermit Zarley, Billy Casper and Rex Baxter Jr., all came in with 213 totals.

"I could have shot a 65 as easy as winking," said Player, who is playing his first tourney since the Masters, early in April. Player was seven-under before bogeying the 13th hole.

"I really had a charge going until then," he said.

At Indy Heat Wave Adds To Controversy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—A sudden heat wave added fire Friday to the controversy over Parnell Jones' STP-Pratt & Whitney turbine car in final shakedown runs for the 51st 500-mile auto race Tuesday.

Several drivers complained the shimmering waves of heat from the car, which they hadn't noticed in uncommonly chilly weather earlier, definitely bothered them Friday. Temperatures which had been in the 60s jumped to 82.

"Within three laps I was spitting cotton," said Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., who was running behind Jones in a Foyt Coyne Ford.

Chief Steward Harlan Fendley told Andy Granatelli, president of Studebaker's Corp.'s STP division, to put a deflector on the turbine exhaust vent to throw the stream of heated air above following cars.

Passes At Will

Jones didn't help the situation by swooshing past other cars, apparently at will, on the short chutes coming out of the front and back main stretches. The four-wheel-drive turbine car has four 12.10 by 16-inch tires, each having about a 10-inch-wide "footprint" on the track and giving tremendous traction.

Committee Ends Probe Of IHSA

Expect Few Records To Fall In '68

(Second of Two Pieces.)
By FRED SPARKS
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

MOSCOW — (NEA) — Like everyone else, the U.S.S.R. athletic officials are worried about the effect of the altitude on athletes in the speed sports — track and field, cycling and swimming — at the Mexico City Olympics.

"I doubt," said V. G. Savvin, secretary of the Soviet Olympic Committee, "if we'll see any amazing results next summer. Few if any records will be set."

Altitude, of course, is but one of the problems Russia's athletic commissars approach with IBM precision. Jointly with engineers, Soviet physicians have developed apparatus which helps trainers monitor the progress of their wards as if they were so many securities on the stock exchange.

For example, in Dynamo Stadium, another swimmer, a deep-chested Georgian, did his specialty, the butterfly stroke, with electronic devices on his wrists and ankles.

These automatically recorded his strokes and kicks on a pool-side graph. The Georgian emerged and intensely studied the chart with his coach. It showed very clearly that while his kicks had been perfect, his strokes had been a bit wild, erratic, and this cost him speed.

The Georgian plunged back in to practice And practice until he chopped through enough chlorinated water to disinfect Lake Erie.

On another occasion, at Moscow University's indoor track, I watched runners jog around, wearing rubber contraptions that looked like hot water bags over their noses. These gadgets checked their breathing patterns.

Vladimir Popov, national coach of the Soviet men's track and field team, said: "We're just beginning to understand how breath, if properly controlled, can make an ordinary athlete become — what do you Americans say? — superman."

Popov is a great believer in music to put athletes in a proper winning mood, and popular tunes were piped onto the track during the training session, square music, like Gershwin, no rock'n'roll or jazz — which might make the sportsmen jittery.

Naturally, photography is an essential tool of every Soviet coach. Igor Ter-Ovanesyan, one of the world's best long jumpers, went through his paces followed by a film photographer who used a television-type camera with an instant playback device. After each series of practice jumps, Igor studied his own style in regular and slow motion.

I wandered over to where the women were working out and half of them were having their blood pressure and temperatures taken by a veritable platoon of medics.

One of them was Tatiana Talisheva, another long jumper who's a sure-thing to make the women's track and field team. Tatiana, a delicious blonde who could raise any man's blood pressure, laughed and said: "I'm sure I'll do well in Mexico because altitude raises the

Friday's Sports Modell New President Of NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns, was named president of the National Football League Friday. He will serve in the new capacity until the next league meeting in February.

Modell, 42, will have duties comparable to that held by Milt Woodard, president of the American Football League.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle will be the top official of the two leagues whose merger is expected to be completed by 1970.

Modell, who will remain as the Browns' owner and will operate his new position out of his Cleveland office, was elected unanimously by the NFL owners.

"I will take one of the two hats off Pete," said Modell, "and I'll help as much as I can. We'll review the situation in February. If a change is necessary next year, it will be done."

The NFL also voted to extend the contract for the College All-Star game promoted by the Chicago Tribune for two more years through 1969. The current contract expires this year with the game scheduled to be played on Aug. 4.

Earlier in the day, the NFL owners increased their contributions to the players' pension fund to $1.2 million for the next three years.

The new amount is an increase of $200,000 over the past few years. A total of $900,000 will go directly to the pension fund and $300,000 will be used to purchase life and health insurance.

Astros Break Club Mark, Rip Cubs 17-4

CHICAGO (AP) — The last-place Houston Astros walloped four home runs and sent in the biggest scoring spree in the club's history Friday when they trounced the Chicago Cubs 17-4.

Ten of the runs resulted from home runs as Rusty Staub and Joe Morgan drove theirs with two on and Jim Wynn and Ron Davis connected with one on.

Benefitting from the splurge was righthander Dave Giusti, who posted his first victory after five losses.

Houston's previous high in runs scored was 16 against the New York Mets in 1962.

The Cubs, who scored 20 runs against the Los Angeles Dodgers last Saturday, scored three runs in the seventh when Adolfo Phillips hit his fifth homer with two men on. Ron Santo homered for Chicago in the eighth.

Gonzalez delivered the winning hit after Joe Azcue bounced a single off Smith's chest and raced all the way to third when the Yankee third baseman threw wildly past first.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Moe Drabowsky choked off a Boston rally in the fifth inning and pitched the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-3 victory over the Red Sox Friday night.

Clemente's Hit In 12th Inning Dumps Reds, 6-5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente's two-out single in the 12th inning gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Friday night.

The Pirates had loaded the bases without a hit in the 12th as Jesse Gonder and Matty Alou were hit by Darrell Osteen pitches and Jose Pagan walked.

After Maury Wills popped up for the second out of the inning, Clemente's hit ended it.

The Pirates had tied it at 5-5 in the bottom of the 11th on Bill Mazeroski's two-out single following walks to Alou and Willie Stargell.

That erased a one-run Cincinnati lead produced by Tommy Helms' inside-the-park homer in the top of the 11th.

Helms also had a key single in a two-run Reds' ninth that tied the score after the Pirates had scored twice in the bottom of the eighth on George Spriggs' sacrifice fly and a single by Manny Mota.

Mather Captures Berth In Finals

CHICAGO (AP) — Mather defeated Taft 3-2 Friday to earn a berth in the Illinois State High School quarter-final baseball playoffs.

Mather will represent Chicago in the playoffs, beginning Thursday in Peoria.

Mather won the game in the bottom of the final inning when Taft's Terry Brown, wearing down because of 90-degree heat, hit two batters and yielded a game-winning hit to Mike Kreb, who drove in Phil Glassman with the winning run.

The loss was the first for Brown in 13 games. Mather's opponent will be Cairo in the second of the tournament.

Lock Homer Tips Cardinals By 7-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don Lock, given a second chance when Phil Gagliano lost his foul pop in the eighth, blasted a three-run eighth-inning homer that lifted the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-4 comeback victory over St. Louis Friday night.

Trailing 4-3 in the eighth, the Phils tied the score on singles by Johnny Briggs, Tony Taylor and Rich Allen. Joe Hoerner replaced Ron Willis on the mound for the Cardinals and retired Johnny Callison on a grounder for the second out.

But, after second baseman Gagliano let Lock's pop-up drop in foul ground behind first base, the Phillie outfielder drove his fourth homer into the left field seats, breaking the deadlock.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The fights were in the smoky, dimly-lit clubs dotting the north-west from Boise to San Jose to Spokane and all the way to Anchorage.

The punches and fighters weren't very smooth; neither was the whiskey. But there was action and that was all the customers demanded of kids like Roger Rouse.

That was back in 1958. In those days, there was plenty of work: a fight every third week. Then, suddenly, his manager, Sid Flaherty, forgot him.

One night in San Jose, Roger reached into his pocket and found he didn't have the rent money for his furnished room. He spent that night and several others in the back seat of his car.

With the fresh money behind him—the group is called Montana Boxing Enterprises—Roger started winning a kind of the big names beginning around for a good payday.

He reversed a losing decision with Henry Hank, beat Eddie Cotton three times and knocked out Johnny Persol in the first round in Persol's first fight.

His record is 30-5-3.

"Montana is good boxing country because we don't have any other professional sports," Roger said, "I've got a pretty good following."

Roger is 31, with a receding reddish-brown hairline and eyes as blue as a clear Montana sky. He comes from a family which includes four brothers, all boxers.

"As kids," Roger remembers, "we always were encouraged to box. My mother never objected, but she can't stand to fight a fight. She came to one fight of mine and didn't watch at all. She just said her rosary."

"Although I had a pretty hard time for awhile, I didn't advise my younger brothers to stay out of boxing. I think Jimmy and Doug have the potential to be good fighters. Jimmy (also a light-heavyweight) is the stronger of the two. Doug (a middleweight) is the boxer."

Roger is a combination. He is the top light-heavyweight contender and probably will get a long-awaited title shot against champion Dick Tiger.

"I'm used to waiting," Roger said. "They made me the top contender for a year ago and all that's happened since then is that my hair's gotten a little thinner on top."

Maybe Roger's hair is thinner, but his wallet isn't.

JUST STROLLING along is light-heavyweight boxer Roger Rouse of Anaconda, Mont., the top-ranked contender in his division. He has a 30-5-3 record.

He was working part time as a mechanic then. He would park his car in front of the garage, waking with the sun, and then start to work. When he was finished, he'd head for the gymnasium and a workout for fights that never came.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Eddie Nely, who saddled horses which won a record $2,456,250 in 1966, began his racing career as a dishwasher in a track kitchen.

Five colts trained by Nely for the Wheatley Stable have been nominated for the 1967 Preakness. They include Succor, the 2-year-old champion of last year. Bold Monarch, Great Power, Top Bid and Disciplinarian.

Disneyland Faces a New Tomorrow

DISNEYLAND HAS MANY FACES, including New Orleans Square, left, and Sleeping Beauty's Castle. Many of the park's features will probably never require any changes, but Tomorrowland has a way of becoming outmoded.

By DICK KLEINER

West Coast Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
ANAHEIM, Calif. — (NEA) — The trouble with tomorrow is that it becomes yesterday very quickly. That's what happened to Tomorrowland, one of the subdivisions of Disneyland here, which became so outmoded by real events that it is now being almost completely rebuilt.

While Tomorrowland didn't exactly become Yesterdayland, it had lost a lot of excitement. One of the attractions was a Rocket to the Moon ride—designed originally in 1955 by Wernher von Braun—but science had gone so far that the ride was no longer very tomorrowish.

Now a new flight to the moon is being built, incorporating the latest dreams of visionaries and the latest facts of science.

The rebuilding of Tomorrowland is costing $20 million, which is $3 million more than the entire park cost originally. And a stroll around the area shows why.

Six vast and costly new attractions are being built. Hundreds of workmen are rushing to get them finished for the summer—hopefully, they will be ready for the tourists by mid-July.

One of the most ambitious of the new features is the PeopleMover, also sometimes called the WEDway after Walt E. Disney's initials. This will take people on cars through the entire area on a new kind of transportation system. The cars move on an endless belt and never stop, but the passengers board and disembark via a platform that moves into synchronization with the cars.

The Carousel of Progress is another exhibit, and is a duplicate of an attraction the Disney people built for the New York World's Fair. The audience revolves around a circular stage, on which audio-animatronic figures portray the progress of mankind.

There will also be an expanded and modernized "America the Beautiful" exhibit, in which the audience sees a motion picture projected on a screen that completely surrounds them.

Brand new is "Adventures Through Inner Space," which will take the tourist into such minute items as an atom and a snowflake.

The sixth new area is the ever-present refreshment and souvenir department, without which no amusement park could function.

Veterans of Disneyland will be happy to learn that the very successful submarine ride has been retained, as well as the Autopia—where kids and their parents can take model cars for a spin. But that is all that remains of the old Tomorrowland.

In 1959, an $8 million expansion program included the submarine ride. But, except for that, Tomorrowland hasn't been touched since the park opened in 1955.

Other areas—Fantasyland, Frontierland and Adventureland—do not become dated. They are as popular now as they always were. But Tomorrowland has to be kept modern.

There is another reason for the big expenditure. The park's officials want to discount rumors that, with Disney's death, there might be creative trouble ahead. Some people felt that without the guiding genius of Walt Disney, the park might change in some way.

Walt Disney had seen and approved of the plans for all these new Tomorrowland features. And those who are now running the park want the world to know that Disneyland will continue to improve, even though Walt is no longer around.

There are still many more attractions in the works and chances are that Disneyland will outlast several Tomorrowland revisions.

Boosters Slate

Officers were elected Thursday night, May 25, at the potluck session of the Boosters Class at the Methodist church.

The slate of officers was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Akers of the nominating committee. It was accepted as follows: presidents, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Shade; vice-presidents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Keller; and secretary - treasurer, Charles Dennis.

Reverend Kelvin McCray gave the invocation and Mrs. Verna B. Taylor gave the devotions.

The program numbers were introduced by Mrs. Everett Spencer. A piano solo was played by Gail Smith and Arnie Smith had a vocal solo. Both girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Smith.

Special recognition was given to Gail Smith, Miss Nellie Sawyer, and Lamont Gilmore, who were celebrating their birthdays.

At Workshop

Attending the WSCS workshop for the Jacksonville district, on Thursday, May 25, were Miss Nellie Sawyer, Mrs. Ray Winter, Mrs. Harvey Hodge, Mrs. John W. Roberts, Mrs. Russell Carey, Mrs. Lewis Bartlett, Mrs. Everett Spencer, Mrs. Charles E. Martin, and Mrs. Verna B. Taylor.

The workshop was held at the Centenary Methodist church in Jacksonville.

FRANKLIN'S HARMONICA — Benjamin Franklin in 1761—60 years before the mouth organ as we know it was invented—produced an instrument with treadle - rotated and self-tuned glasses which held different amounts of water and yielded different notes when sounded. They're Vietnam's Wildest Warriors

TOM TIEDE IN VIETNAM

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
GIA DINH, Vietnam—(NEA) — It is mercilessly hot and sun fire sparkles from the twitching flanks of the two nervous combatants.

They eye one another cautiously. One feints with his shoulder. The other ignores it and continues to circle slowly for an opening. Suddenly, a blow is struck.

Then another.

And in an instant the wildly screeching warriors are at each other's throats, flaying the air, kicking and punching and biting in a startling flurry of instinctive hatred and preservation.

Hand-to-hand combat? Yes. Men at war? No.

It is simply a Vietnamese cricket fight.

Violence seems a way of life in this nation. Soldiers get it in the guerrilla-infested jungles. Others go to the movies ("Thrills! Blood Runs on the screen!") or religiously scan through the adventure serials in the monthly pulp-and-peek publications.

But for the kids it's cricket, inch-long, hard-shelled bugs which at times will fight with half their bodies torn away.

So lustily do the bugs battle, in fact, that good ones will continue aggressive movements even after death. Often, an expired cricket's final living reaction is to grab the victor and kill it in a vise-like death lock.

Fun and games?

Well, to millions of local squirts it is.

The pastime is a deeply serious one for everybody under 12 years old. Most here own at least one bug and some go in for stables of a half dozen or more. Males only, the females are worthless.

The youngsters house the crickets in matchbox cartons or pockets and spend hours of every day preparing them for duty.

Pride, of course, is contagious.

"My bug is better than yours!"

"Sez you."

"Oh yeah?"

"Yeah."

"Aw, yer old man's a Viet Cong."

But in the end the mettle of each lad's insect shows or shies in the ring, the ring being a cookie tin or like container in are settled.

Every afternoon's card is drawn at random from hand-drawn cards. Each owner displays his champion on the end of a thread. Some have black bugs which are very large but seldom industrious; others prefer the smaller, more volative brown beetle.

Bets are placed (bottle caps or penny-dongs). Crowds are formed. Positions are taken. The adversaries are placed eyeball to eyeball in the arena and fibers are waved at them for irritation.

"Mau len!" the kids yell impatiently.

Turban head fifty-cent piece

Like "Mercury Head," the term "Turban Head" is a misnomer. Liberty's headdress is the familiar Phrygian cap worn by freed Roman slaves as a badge of their liberation. The people of the First French Republic used the same cap as their symbol. Our mint designers and engravers employed it as a means of complying with the coinage laws that require coins to bear a device emblematic of liberty.

John Reich, a German-born bondsman freed from servitude by a mint official, designed the turban-head concept of liberty. Until 1807 the denomination

"FIFTY CENTS" or "HALF DOLLAR" appeared only on the rim of the 50-cent piece. From 1807 to 1836, the symbol 50 C. was displayed on the reverse in addition to the original phrase and in 1836 the rim was reeded and the reverse denomination replaced with "HALF DOLLAR."

There are several types and type variations of the Turban Head half and to single out one date as being typical of that series would be impossible.

Some of the variations that may affect the value are large stars and small stars, large date and small date, halves with the motto and halves without, etc.

The 1815 over 1812, with a mintage of 47,150, would be the real scarce date. Its value ranges from $50 in its poorest condition to $350 in extra fine. The two blue chip dates are, in order of their value, the 1839-O and the 1836 with the milled edge. These dates show a value of $40 in good shape to $360 uncirculated.

Renters, Owners Take A Look At Cash Rent Instead Of Half-Half

URBANA—Recently, Illinois farmers have shown increased interest in cash leases as an alternative to the one-half share rents prevailing in central and northern areas of the state.

Tenants are competing for land by bidding cash rents up to $60 a year for an acre of good corn land. And landlords are offering good farms for rent at $50 to $60 gross cash rent per tillable acre.

It is too early yet to have any statistics on a possible shift to cash leases, says U.I. land and tenancy economist Franklin J. Reiss. But it is clear that it is time to answer several important questions.

Illinois farmers can advantageously make greater use of all-cash leases, Reiss believes. But what would possibly result from an indiscriminate rush to cash leases, particularly if landowners triggered such a shift hoping to get higher net rents from current farm income?

In such a case, Reiss says that we could lose two important qualities of our land tenure system: generally excellent tenure security under a system of year-to-year leases and the feeling by landlord and tenant that they are partners in the farm business.

Efficient Tenants
These factors have helped make our Corn Belt agriculture both a high-tenancy area and one of the most efficient and productive agricultural areas in the world.

The picture could change quickly if landlords should become interested in simply getting the highest possible cash rent. Tenants would then face intensified competition for land and great insecurity. There would be little to prevent any outsider from outbidding the current rent. Tenants would not be as willing to try new practices, make large capital investments in new machinery or build up the productivity of the land, as they have under our system of share rents.

Reiss notes that the English have learned from long experience with cash leases that the highest cash rent bid may be an irresponsible bid. Taking on such a tenant often invites trouble.

Both landlord and tenant must calculate what might be a reasonable rental on the property in question. And once the two parties decide on a fair cash rent on the property, will this figure be fair the next year and the year after that? Or will there be continuous bargaining and a continuous feeling of insecurity along with it?

There could be, Reiss says. But it is possible to write into cash leases certain devices that will effect an automatic adjustment in the cash rent from year to year as other factors change.

Different Ways
For example, the cash rent can be tied to a standing amount of production, to index numbers, to county average yields and to land prices. Adjustments in the rent would then become automatic, permitting an increase in tenure security by either writing longer term leases or leases with automatic renewal from year to year.

For answers to more specific questions on cash leases, Reiss suggests that you request Circular 960, "Farm Leases for Illinois," from Agricultural Publications, College of Agriculture, Urbana, Illinois 61801.

Agriculture The Dynamic Business, Says Hackleman

A brief look at the records is all that is needed to illustrate the dynamic growth of Illinois agriculture over the last four decades, says J. C. Hackleman of the Illinois Crop Improvement association.

Corn yields are probably the most dramatic indicator of increased agricultural efficiency, says Hackleman. From 1926 to 1930, the average corn yield in Illinois was 33.6 bushels per acre. Between 1961 and 1965, the average yield was 83.4 bushels. This is an increase of 148%.

Even more dramatic, says Hackleman, is the fact that Illinois' total corn yield has increased by 438,000,000 bushels, while the acreage planted to corn has decreased by nearly 78,000 acres. Corn acreage fell from 8,931,000 acres in 1926-30 to 8,853,200 acres in 1961-65. Here, says Hackleman, is a real tribute to the efficiency of today's farmer.

The records also illustrate the tremendous gain in popularity of soybeans over the last forty years. Here the acreage increase has been even greater than the yield increase, as soybeans rose from the status of a neglected crop to become the second most important field crop in Illinois.

Soybean acreage has increased an amazing 24 times, Hackleman points out, from 229,000 acres in 1926-30 to 5,485,000 acres in 1961-65. Yields have increased by 85%, from 15.2 to 28.2 bushels per acre.

The trend of greater production per acre extends to wheat and oats, too, says Hackleman. Although total output has decreased as other crops have become more economically important, average yield per acre has increased by 74% for oats and 124% for wheat.

Many factors have contributed to this dynamic trend, Hackleman adds. More efficient equipment, fertilizers, insecticides, greater plant populations, and seed certification practices have all played a part. But certainly one of the most important factors has been the ingenuity and dedication of Illinois' farmers.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

WEATHER NORMAL: TOO WET AND TOO DRY

The weather has been about normal so far this spring: Too wet in some places and too dry in others!

It's been cold and wet over most of the Corn Belt—dry in the central and southern Great Plains and in central Florida.

On May 6, 42 percent of Illinois reported surplus soil moisture. None reported too little moisture. This was the wettest soil condition reported on that date for several years.

Fieldwork in Illinois was about three weeks behind last year, though only a few days later than average. But many farmers in central and southern Illinois got further behind by May 17.

Iowa, like Illinois, has been wet and cool. Corn planting started a few days later than usual. Ohio fits about the same pattern—cool, wet, and a little late.

It has been cool in Wisconsin, but they haven't complained about too much rain. In fact, soil moisture was reported to be short in some southwestern areas in early May. It's been downright cold in Minnesota, and the northern third of that state has reported too much rain.

Farmers and ranchers in the Southern Plains (Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas) suffered from drought over the winter, but many received good rains in April and early May. Much of the wheat was beyond help, but the remaining acreage should produce a fair crop.

Harvest will be early. Some plowed under wheat fields may be planted with sorghum grain.

More Wheat Than Ever
Nationwide conditions on May 1 pointed to a winter wheat crop of 1,195 million bushels. That would be the biggest crop ever produced—13 percent more than last year. Average yields per acre aren't expected to equal those of last year, but there are more acres for harvest. The average yield is forecast at 26.8 bushels per acre—compared with 27.4 bushels in 1966.

The Illinois winter wheat crop is forecast at 74 million bushels—27 percent more than last year. The state average yield per acre is figured at 40 bushels—1 bushel less than in 1966. The acreage is up about 30 percent from last year.

Soil moisture seems to be favorable for a good crop of spring wheat. In March, U.S. farmers reported intentions of

The club plans to sell tickets for the Morgan County Pork Producers cookout, to be held June 17 at Lincoln Square Shopping center.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Rita and Mary Anne Ring.

Members of the Jolly Jax 4-H Club met recently at the home of Laurie Ogle with Pam Black in charge of the business session.

Cindy Gano recited the 4-H pledge, Jan Hickey, a visitor, pledged to the flag.

Brownies baked by Laurie Ogle were judged. Gaye Simpson presented an illustrated talk. Cathy Black and Jewell Akers also appeared on the program.

planting 13.9 million acres—one-fifth more than last year. Back in March, farmers reported intentions of planting 71 million acres of corn—up 7 percent from last year. They also were expecting to plant 41 million acres of soybeans—9 percent more than in 1966. If corn planting is delayed much longer, some land intended for corn will be planted with soybeans.

If weather is near normal during this summer, the shrinkage of corn stocks may be stopped, and soybean stocks will be increased further in the next marketing year.

Johnson, Freeman: What They Want?, Asks Chas. Shuman

CHICAGO — The Johnson Administration's current farm policy is one of utter confusion and has created widespread farmer unrest, Charles B. Schuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said here Tuesday in addressing the annual meeting of the American Feed Manufacturers association in the Hilton hotel.

"The Administration can't make up its mind whether it wants more or less farm production," Shuman said.

"Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says U.S. farmers must produce more food to feed a hungry world, but a grain committee appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture has recommended a 12 percent cut in 1967-68 wheat allotments."

"The only point on which Administration spokesmen are agreed is a campaign against legislation which would end the wheat and feed grain control programs in 1968."

"The Administration's campaign to defeat this legislation, known as the Wheat and Feed Grains Act of 1967 and introduced in Congress by 17 House members, was launched last week in Washington. More than 200 of the Agriculture Department's state agricultural stabilization and conservation service committee members who direct farm control programs were called to the Capitol at taxpayers' expense to hear exhortations by President Johnson, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, and Vice President Humphrey."

From All Over
"These Department of Agriculture payrollers supervise some 88,000 agricultural stabilization and conservation service farmer-committeemen in the counties and communities and 15,000 full-time county office workers throughout the U.S."

"Secretary Freeman told the Washington meeting of state ASCS officials that some people were opposing the current farm control programs for political reasons, but farm program managers must not allow themselves to be frightened by these demagogues. Instead, he said, those who run the farm programs must go out and militantly carry the story of these programs to farmers and others."

Direct From LBJ
"President Johnson told the government agents they were the voice of the Administration and he had a message for them to pass on to farmers. 'The message was this: Tell the farmer he is not forgotten; tell American farmers to spend their time on constructive adventures instead of reshaping the misfortunes and complaints of the past.'"

"It is apparent that the Johnson Administration is determined to use every means at its command to stifle the growing opposition to its control and subsidy programs."

"These resources are formidable. While farm numbers have steadily decreased, USDA employees have increased. There is now one USDA employee for every 15 farmers in the nation and the USDA spends $8.9 million a year for publicity and reports."

The Parity Ratio
"However, with all these resources, I don't think the Administration will be able to quiet growing revolt on the farm against the outmoded and wasteful federal farm programs which have driven the parity ratio to the depression low of 1934. (The parity ratio shows the relationship between the prices farmers receive and the price of items purchased for production.)

"Few taxpayers know that the annual cost of $3 billion for farm programs is more than the total bill for running the government back in 1933."

"The total cost of farm price support and related programs from 1933 to 1966 was more than $51 billion. Total annual direct payments of $3 billion in 1966 compare with $693 million in 1960 and $283 million in 1950."

"With government farm surplus stocks at record lows and in view of the current domestic and world demand for food, there never was a better time to start dismantling the archaic structure of the farm control program. The termination of the wheat and feed grain programs in 1968 would result in savings to taxpayers and afford farmers an opportunity to produce for the market."

"Nothing Temporary"
"Farmers' difficulty in freeing themselves from federal controls and subsidies should serve as a horrible example of what happens to those who seek solutions to their problems by turning to government. We in agriculture have learned that there is nothing temporary about a government program."

"For this and other reasons, farmers are not likely to listen to the plea of President Johnson, as relayed to them by government payrollers, to forget the 'misfortunes and complaints of the past' because they are too recent."

"It was only a little more than a year ago that the President blamed farmers for inflation and advised housewives to buy 'cheaper cuts' of meat to push prices down."

"Farmers also remember the Secretary of Agriculture said he was pleased to report that farm prices were coming down."

"They also remember that the Secretary of Agriculture tax on colored margarine, a 10-cent levy, was repealed in 1950."

market to drive prices down. "Farmers are convinced that the Administration is pursuing a deliberate policy of 'cheap food' in order to placate consumers and divert attention away from the real culprit in the rising cost of living—the free spending, inflationary policies of the federal government."

"Every housewife knows by now that the Administration's 'cheap food' policy imposed on farmers is not helping consumers, and if it is continued, will affect the ability of agricultural producers to meet domestic and world food needs."

Wisconsin Opens Door To Yellow Margarine

Wisconsin has become the 50th and last state to permit the sale of colored margarine. As a result, for the first time in nearly a hundred years, colored margarine soon will be available to consumers throughout the United States.

By signing a bill recently enacted by both Houses of the Wisconsin legislature, Governor Warren P. Knowles Wednesday morning formally repealed the dairy state's 72-year-old prohibition on the sale of yellow margarine. Under the new law, sales to consumers will be permitted as of July 1.

The Wisconsin action followed the lead of 27 other states which have abolished prohibition of the colored table spread since 1944.

The new law also swept away a number of restrictive Wisconsin taxes and licensing requirements on margarine, including a 15-cent per pound tax on the uncolored product. A new tax of 5 1/2 cents per pound will be established on colored margarine for a five-year period terminating June 30, 1972.

Another state, Idaho, recently eliminated a 10-cent tax on colored margarine and a 5-cent levy on the white product, effective May 30.

Special taxes on margarine are still being levied in four other states, according to Siert F. Riepma, president of the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers. These include Minnesota and South Dakota, which impose a 10-cent tax on colored margarine; North Dakota, 20 cents on colored and 10 cents on white; and Utah, 10 cents on colored and 5 cents on white.

Mr. Riepma noted that proposals to repeal or modify the taxes in these remaining four states were pressed by consumer and industry spokesmen more than ever this year. He said the campaign will be renewed in the next session of each state's legislature. The last Federal tax on colored margarine, a 10-cent levy, was repealed in 1950.

FINDING THE WAY

Now Is the Time for Men To Obey Commandments

Dr. Loew

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D. Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Testing the Ten Commandments may seem to be like a woodpecker's rat-a-tat on a giant redwood. Yet this is a permissive generation, seriously flaunting accepted moral standards. Much that is happening today makes us seem to be the counterparts of those who were worshipping the golden calf when Moses returned to them. They came up with one of history's lamest excuses when their leader berated them. "We thought that you had gone from us," they whined. What will we say? "We thought God was dead?"

Look up into the reality and presence of God and you come face to face with your neighbor. No religion that is vital can remain personal; it becomes social. Nor can we look at what is happening around us and claim to be innocent bystanders. Families break down; highway horrors are escalated; sex becomes an economic idol; property is misused and veracity flaunted. When these are accepted as normal, we are in trouble. Look again at these five of the Ten Commandments: Honor your father and your mother. You shall not kill. You shall not commit adultery. You shall not steal. You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor. If these seem to have a negative pose, look at them in their positive statement: Respect, love and serve parents and those in authority. Help your neighbor in all of his physical needs. In matters of sex, words and conduct must be pure and honorable. Help your neighbor to improve and protect his property and his means of making a living. Defend your neighbor, speak well of him and explain his actions in the kindest way. To snub or ignore these is to end in that typical pose of our time, "I've not done anything worse than anyone else."

That's when the old truism is obvious, "A good conscience is the invention of the devil." All of this leaps out of an ancient setting and into the items of this newspaper. Contemporary news reveals the need for a family structure that is meaningful, with housing and education to strengthen the home. Read of wars and violence and consider our personal involvement. Think of the ways in which we trifle with fidelity. Observe the ways in which stealing goes on even when politely disguised as just being shrewd. Look deep into your conscience and consider the times persons are prejudiced, emotional words used and scorn heaped before the facts or circumstances are known.

One of the saddest sentences in literature is recorded in the final statement of an Old Testament book, the Book of Judges. "In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes." In our permissive society too many come to a similar place. It is a time to re-examine the things that matter most.

A member of the Illinois Commission on Education, Mrs. Hildreth Ashwood Barnes of Rushville, has been named to the MacMurray College Board of Trustees as alumna representative.

The new member was elected to a six-year term by the national MacMurray Alumnae Association.

Mrs. Barnes is a past local, county, district, regional and state officer of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. From 1962-64 she served as state president and from 1964-66 on the General Federation. Currently she is director of "Adventures in the Arts," a program for women established by the General Federation at Allerton Park (Ill.) in connection with the University of Illinois. She is also a church leader.

Mrs. Barnes was the only

woman on the Commission of Buildings for the Illinois Pavilion at the New York World's Fair. She also was the only woman on the screening committee to hire personnel for the pavilion.

A former Jacksonville high school teacher, she is the wife of Vernon Barnes, a graduate of Eastern Illinois University who teaches in Jacksonville. They have three children, Dr. Byron A. Barnes, professor of pharmacology at the St. Louis College of Pharmacy; Jeanne Barnes Bartlett, a MacMurray Alumna and former teacher, and Marilyn Barnes Stephens, Illinois Wesleyan graduate and former teacher.

Mrs. Barnes enjoys traveling. She has toured the United States, Europe, South America, Alaska and the Caribbean Islands.

She graduated during the time MacMurray was operating under the name of Illinois Woman's College.

Former Jacksonville Woman Selected Mac Alumna Of The Year

Batavia's librarian, Miriam Havighurst Johnson, was named the 1967 Alumna of the Year by the national MacMurray College Alumnae Association. The recipient is the wife of Carl W. Johnson, 229 North Washington, Batavia.

Mrs. Johnson's father, the late Rev. Freeman A. Havighurst, was minister of the Grace Methodist Church in Jacksonville from 1930 to 1935.

The announcement was the highlight of Alumni Day held Saturday (May 27) as part of the festivities of Commencement Weekend, May 26-28. President of the college, Dr. Gordon E. Michelson cited Mrs. Johnson as a "living example of our Women's College motto: 'Knowledge, Faith and Service.'"

He recognized her role as head librarian of the Batavia Public Library for a quarter of a century and in whose name the children's wing has been named. Dr. Michelson also cited her as one who was recognized by her community as their 1965 Citizen of the Year; the past president of the Illinois Library Association and a "talented musician who has promoted the love of reading among two generations of children."

Mrs. Johnson is a graduate of the Jacksonville High School, MacMurray College and the University of Illinois. She taught at the Durand and Batavia high schools before returning to study at the University of Illinois where she received a Bachelor of Science degree in Library Science.

She has been a church organizer, served as president of the Batavia PEO Sisterhood, and on the Business and Industry Committee in Batavia from 1964-66.

Besides her many honors, she has served in an instrumental capacity in founding "The Friends of the Library" and promoted "The Great Books Club."

The ceremony, a tradition of the Women's College, symbolizes the motto: "Knowledge, Faith and Service". Miss Shennan is flanked by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Busche. Dr. Busche is a member of the Music Department faculty and directed the choir when Miss Shennan was at MacMurray.

High Percentage Of Mac Grads Continue Studies

Over the years—since 1909—717 MacMurray College graduates have earned advanced degrees, an average of a dozen each year. And currently 131 alumni are in post-graduate programs.

Significant statistics have been achieved by the College for Men, which graduated its first class only five years ago, in 1962. Of the 404 men who have earned MacMurray degrees, 144 have received either their master's degree, or are currently studying for this degree. In the same five year period, 12 men have already received the doctoral degree and 34 are now studying for it.

Women graduates of MacMurray since 1909 total 3126, with 568 holding or working toward a master's degree. In the doctoral category, 43 women have earned this advanced degree and 17 are now working toward their doctorates.

Ten MacMurray College graduates have held Fulbright Scholarships in the field of art, chemistry, English, German, organ, romance languages, Spanish and voice.

George Whitmore, a 1967 graduate, is the fifth MacMurray student to receive a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship.

The graduate school of MacMurray College granted 208 master's degrees during its 20 years of existence, 1944-64. Of these, 63, were awarded to graduates of MacMurray.

JERSEYVILLE SENIORS TO VISIT ST. LOUIS

JERSEYVILLE — The senior class of Jersey Community High School will take its "senior trip" May 31. Dinner will be served at the Cheshire Inn in Clayton, Mo.

A choice of entertainment is given the students. They may attend either the Cardinals vs. Atlanta game at Busch Memorial Stadium or see "Hawaii" at Martin's cinema theater.

This trip marks the end of social activities at the high school for members of the class of 1967.

Storm Damage To Lagoons Proves Costly

BEARDSTOWN — Problems remain to be solved in connection with the sewage system built at city expense to accommodate Oscar Mayer and Co. Repairs at a cost of $35,000 have been made to one of the four lagoons damaged by a recent storm, according to officials. This job of repair work was done manually through the use of asphalt for patching. The big cost was for labor as about 20 men were employed carrying the asphalt in buckets over the lagoon floor.

Remaining to be repaired is the other large lagoon and it is hoped to keep the cost down by applying about $5,000 worth of bentonite clay mechanically. Cost of the lagoon system — which spreads over 80 acres — has been about $200,000 greater than the half million originally estimated, and raised through a revenue bond program.

Oscar Mayer has come to the city's aid with some $180,000 for this extra cost in an arrangement involving the plant obligation to make monthly payment for use of the system.

City officials point out that the sewer system is much larger than actually needed by OM but the extra size may some day make Beardstown attractive for another large industry.

Oscar Mayer has veto power on use of the system by another industry, but would only exercise such power if effluent to be introduced into the system were incompatible to OM.

Two car loads of bentonite clay are expected here soon for the repair work on the big 35 acre lagoon. City authorities are "praying" for success in this action.

Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council News

The reorganization of Cadette girl scout troop 32 took place in October, 1966. The co-leaders are Mrs. H. Jack Stevenson and Mrs. James E. Cruse.

They are assisted by Mrs. Nick Gioscio and Mrs. Harry Arnold. The troop consists of 31 scouts, 3 of whom are from the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School.

The girls are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caldwell of 1042 W. State for providing a meeting place for them.

The big event in October was an overnight at Camp Shagbark with other Cadette and Senior scouts.

In December the troop sang Christmas carols at Holy Cross, Passavant hospital, Modern Care, and Melrose Nursing homes.

The rededication ceremony was held in January at the I.B.S.S. School. Parents were invited.

One major decision of the Court of Honor was to work on the Challenge of Emergency Preparedness and the First Aid badge.

In February, after being thoroughly instructed by Mrs. David LaKamp R.N., all of the girls received their First Aid badges. Mrs. LaKamp presented each of the girls with a small first aid book.

April 23rd was a big day at Shagbark for 21 scouts as each met the Challenge of Emergency Preparedness successfully.

Much preparation led up to this challenge.

Also in the month of April, Illinois Power's Home Economist, Velma Beaird, instructed the troop in the Chef's badge.

Scouts ushered for the Jacksonville Symphony Orchestra last fall and this spring. Also as a community service, clothing was collected for needy children of the area.

Climaxing the year was a Mother's tea and Court of Awards held at Mrs. Stevenson's home, 2201 Mound Road, May 26.

Also in the month of April, Illinois Power's Home Economist, Velma Beaird, instructed the troop in the Chef's badge.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

Prayer Poem

Crime Prevention

By Mary Pence Claywell

Some criticize the churches, the schools and neighborhood. And RIGHTLY, half-dressed females in joints, to coax and goad:

Nor would we condone any others, it surely would be unwise,

Whose shorts are only CROTCH strings . . .

Or tight skirts up to their thighs:

While lack of this, and lack of that,

May sometimes, make crime bigger . . .

But the NUMBER ONE PREVENTION PLACE,

So many . . . FAIL to figure: Prevention, Lord, begins at HOME.

When youngsters find their cry Will bring some one upon the trot,

So, on it . . . they rely: And then, the humoring all begins,

They got their every whim . . . While parents fail to realize That they are SPOILING them:

So often, modern parents feel Their children have the right to roam . . .

And freely TRESPASS everywhere, With no RESPECT to others' HOMES:

It LEAVES THEM FREE, and yet, Dear Lord . . .

They're courting FUTURE PAIN and SORROW:

TRESPASSING is the BREEDING GROUND

For the hoodlums . . . of TOMORROW:

The Home is Heart of things that LAST . . .

Yours, Parents, is the job, to do, And rivers of TEARS will do no good,

If ever, the big iron gates clang to: And, if ever, your heart is breaking,

"Twill be TOO LATE to PINE For what you PASS off as MISCHIEF NOW,

TOMORROW, the LAW will call CRIME.

Sea Animals

O love to walk along the shore, And see things I've never seen before.

All my treasures shall be there But mother calls it junk. But I have a place to keep it I store in my trunk.

I saw a spider crab, I thought he was mean and bad If you went to the sea with me, O what fun it would be. There are many, many shells, Some of them look like bells.

I would hate to meet a shark, Which looks ugly in the dark. I like some sea creatures, All of them have pretty features.

I love sea in the month of May Which isn't far from today.

It is a wonderful place to be Down below the beautiful sea. Razor clams can dig deep They are good enough to eat. If you've ever been before I'm sure you'd want to go once more.

PAULA SUE SUMPTER writes, "I will be 2 years old June 2. My parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sumpter, 215 Allen Ave. I have 3 brothers and 2 sisters. My grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sumpter, Jacksonville; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick, Virginia. I have a great grandmother, Maude Surratt, Meredosia."

Fun In May

I like this season For many a reason. I like to play On a sunny day.

And on the ground I like to lay, Especially on a day in May.

Oh, it is such fun To play and run Under the sun,

Till the day is done. I like the flowers And the way the grass towers.

So this is my line About the time of spring

ELECTRIC POWER IN SPACE

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

Satellites in space require electrical power just as do electrical machines on earth. However, as a television set says, no repairman can be called in outer space so satellite power systems must be designed with considerably greater precision.

Most satellites are powered by storage batteries recharged by solar cells which convert sunlight into electrical power. These are the small rectangles on the sides of the satellite shown above. The size and shape of the satellite is determined primarily by the number of solar cells needed to supply its power requirements.

The raw electricity generated by the solar cells must be conditioned and controlled in order to be useful for the satellite's electronics. Paul Bauer and Herbert Riess of TRW's Electric Power Laboratory have a method for doing this which they believe could be applied to all satellites requiring up to a kilowatt of power in any orbit.

Simple Satellite? Their method is based on desired efficiency. For example, a simple satellite may be more reliable than a complicated one but it will be less efficient. If the satellite is more elaborate there is the risk that it may break down before it has done its job. In some scientific satellites the required lifetime may be short enough to take this risk—but not in communication and weather satellites.

The power system for this type of satellite must be self-correcting. In the event one part fails the power controls must adjust to the difference in power load.

The power supply must also respond. For example, if the solar cells are supplying more power than is needed at the moment it must be kept from overloading the circuits. TRW Systems recommends that the excess power be reflected back to the solar cells and re-radiated into space. This is done by controlling portions of the solar cell banks so that their efficiency is reduced when they are supplying excess power. This has the advantage of reducing the heat which must be dissipated from the satellite.

6 Vital Factors

There are six important factors to consider in planning a satellite power supply system:

1. The ratio of darkness to sunlight, which effects the battery charging circuit.

2. The total amount of darkness determines the size of the batteries required.
3. The temperature of the satellite also affects the control circuit.
4. The tilt of the satellite's orbit affects the amount of time it is in light and darkness.
5. The periods of peak power demand.
6. Reliability of the satellite's parts.

Herb Rosen, a TRW spokesman, comments, "Prolonging the lifetime of the satellite power supply is one of the principal tasks of the designer."

My friend and I had always wanted to sleep in the old Simmons mansion. So one day we got our sleeping bags and went over there. It was spooky enough in the daytime. That night we got up and went up in the tower of the old house. We stood there looking at what looked like a heap of bones. We ran down stairs to find we were locked in. We tried to find an open window but we couldn't.

We went to the first floor and found the door open. We grabbed our sleeping bags and ran home. That's the last time I'll ever sleep there from now on!

Mike Atkins, grade 6 Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher

Spooky

Spring is a lovely time of year. No one can really shed a tear. All the children go out to play. On their swings all the day.

Kay-Kay, Tom, and Philip Jay All went out to play that day.

It was so sunny and bright, They all decided to fly a kite.

Philip Jay's got stuck in a tree, And he stood there and said, "Well I'll be."

So they all decided to go play house, When one of the girls screamed "Oh! I see a mouse!"

Mouseie was really and truly out for fun, Cause he too wanted to play in the sun.

Joy Andrews, grade 6, Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher

Birds, Flowers

Spring days are always nice, Gathering flowers all gold and white

When Robins sing, And baby birds cry out "Feed me a worm mommy, I'm about to die."

Spring acts like a lamb, Already to pounce on a slight breeze!

Oh, I love the Spring, Beautiful flowers bloom about, Best - best of all I like The soft gray pussy willows Blooming about!

Janice Wilber, grade 6, Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher

Baseball

I awakened one Sunday morning, And looked upon the wall. The Kooties and the Bedbugs, Were having a game of ball.

The score was 10 to 0. The Kooties were ahead. The Bedbugs hit a homerun, And knocked me out of bed.

The score was 10 to 1. The Kooties were ahead. The Bedbugs hit a single. That hit me on the head.

The score was 10 to 1. The Kooties in the lead. The Bedbugs hit a single. That made me start to bleed.

That made me start to bleed. Gerry Gotschal, Grade 6th, Washington school, Mrs. Coker teacher,

Sure Signs

The daffodils and tulips, pushing through the snow, The bending pussy willows in the spring wind blow.

The sound of splashing rain drops, falling from the sky, The robins and the blue-jays singing as they fly.

You hear the children's voices as they loudly yell, And the lovely sounding tunes from the old church bell.

The budding of leaves on the old elm tree, And the buzz, buzz, buzz of the swarming bumble bee.

In the air the sun shines high, While puffy clouds go floating by.

Everywhere the grass is green, Telling us that this is Spring.

Susan Woodward, grade 6, Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher.

Let's Go Birding

Spring Bird Census

By Emma Mae Leonhard

On May 6 the sunrise-to-sunset bird census was taken by the Morgan County Audubon Society. The territory covered included Jacksonville and its lake area, the Mauvaisterre marsh area, lower and upper Smith Lakes and Meredosia Bay areas, and the Snicarte area.

In spite of the constant cold rain two groups set out at 6:00 a.m. and returned as late as 5:00 p.m. The rain was merciless: it made the muddy roads muddier; it drove into the windows of the cars; it interfered with the use of binoculars; and it hushed the important bird song.

Muddy Going

The census - takers, however, were also merciless: they wore rain coats and hoods, boots and gloves which didn't always keep them dry; they slithered through mud and were sucked into mud holes; they gazed through rain - splashed spectacles, rain - drenched windows, and rain - spattered binoculars. In spite of these handicaps they moved on, never hurrying but words at the elements. Instead, they watched for any change in the sky and atmosphere.

Often someone remarked hopefully, "It looks lighter over there; I can see some blue sky." There was always the same retort from one weather-wise member of the group, "It usually gets lighter before it rains harder." And it always did.

107 Kinds Of Birds

Sometimes with a sigh, sometimes with a grunt, and sometimes with a smile, the eight birders continued and finally succeeded in seeing 107 kinds of birds. Although this total was not record-breaking, it was good for the day; especially since the preceding cold cloudy weather had discouraged the migrating warblers from appearing in accordance with the scheduled time, and the high water had covered the mud flats ordinarily used by shorebirds.

Those who participated in the all-day census were: William O'Brien (leader); Ed Fernandes and Bob Decker from Jacksonville High School; Tom Crabtree (leader); Pat Ward and Bob Randall from Illinois College; Mrs. P. J. Davidsmeyer; and Emma Mae Leonhard.

The total list of birds included a Pied-billed Grebe; 5 kinds of herons; 8 kinds of ducks; a Turkey Vulture; a Marsh Hawk; Bobwhites; 3 kinds of Ralls; American Coots; a Killdeer; 5 kinds of sandpipers; 2 kinds of gulls; 2 kinds of terns; Mourning Doves; a Barred Owl; Chimney Swifts; a Kingfisher; 4 kinds of woodpeckers; an Eastern Kingbird; Horned Larks; 6 kinds of swallows; Meadowlarks; Grackles; Cowbirds; Redwinged Blackbirds; Crows; Chickadees; Titmice. Starlings; a White-breasted Nuthatch; 3 kinds of wrens; Catbirds and Brown Thrashers; 6 kind of thrushes; a Gnatcatcher and Rubycrowned Kinglet; 2 kinds of vireos; 13 kinds of warblers; 11 kinds of sparrows; 2 kinds of orioles.

Bobolinks; a Scarlet Tanager; and 7 kinds of finches. The best finds were the Bonaparte's Gull and the Yellow-throated Warbler.

Very good finds were the American Bittern, the Virginia Rail, Short-billed March Wren, Scarlet Tanager, Purple Finch, Vesper Sparrow, and Lark Sparrow.

Was May 6 a lost day for these birders? The "tail bird stories" at the evening meeting would definitely say "No."

LARGE MARBLES

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Dusty knees, begrimed hands and agile thumbs are parts of a boy's game of marbles with his sack of chalkies, glassies, comies, agates and carnelians, but once there were much larger and stouter hands. They were tossed by grown-up down town where a ten foot circle lay close to their places of business.

At the ring's center a foot and one half square was drawn set at each corner with a marble and also one at the center. When shoppers dwindled the store keeper, his clerk, a merchant and his bookkeeper gathered at the ring, united their leather sacks of marbles and made ready for a game.

Turn by turn "taus" were tossed, not shot, at the corner marbles which must be completely knocked outside the circle. A miss lost the player's turn, then shots were aimed at the center marble. The skilled toss that sent it out of the ring, won the game.

Game For Experts

These marbles were too large and heavy for small hands, this was a game for experts. To play was an honor won by invitation only.

If a new or enlarged building covered the favored lot, the game was moved to smooth and handy main street, where straggling wagon traffic halted. Who would miss a game played by skilled townsmen.

The click of marbles often drew a watchful circle of old and young during the years when the men played, but at length the great marbles were stowed away in their leather sacks, curiosities still to be found in attics.

In Space

Space travel started a few years ago. The Russians were first to orbit you know.

Next the Americans got into space, Then everyone knew we were in a race,

To see who could make it to the moon. In space ship or rocket it better be soon.

An astronaut flew twice around the earth. At speeds unheard of and landed on the surf.

A capsule was used as a booster rocket. To catch the Agena and then try to dock it

All this in preparing for a trip to the moon, Which Cape Kennedy sent out with a mighty boom.

While traveling in space an amazing site. Many times in one day you see day and night.

As you orbit the earth you try many feats, Like walking in space and trying to eat.

When zooming in atmosphere you see many things, Like the stars and the earth and the rays the sun brings.

Janet Headen, grade 6, Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher.

That Cat

His coat is a dirty yellow and. He is not a pretty fellow. They say, "look at that cat." Always lying on the welcome mat.

He will only try to get up. Out of the way of the lively pup. The birds that float so high Gave a loud and shrill cry. But that cat couldn't hear, For a little brown mouse was near.

That cat will watch the squirrel. With a tail that has a curl. He can see the horse and toy boat

On the swimming pool as they float. Janet Headen, grade 6, Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher.

Want To Go Abroad?

By Christine Hembrough

Possibly, you could become a foreign exchange student and travel and live in one of the participating countries.

An American Field Service International Scholarship is an open door which leads to understanding and friendship among the many peoples of the world. Through this door pass students from 60 countries to attend secondary schools.

Those students are juniors and seniors in good standing and good health who have had two years study of a foreign language, are at least 16 years old, and can fulfill other qualifications.

Summer Program

There are two programs—the summer and school program. The AFS summer program enables selected juniors to spend six to ten weeks during the summer living with a family abroad.

AFS committees in 36 countries have acted as host to the young Americans finding suitable families for them to live with, watching out for them while they are there, and arranging for them to receive full cultural and educational experiences of the countries they are visiting.

School Program

The school program is now active in 28 countries and has been expanded to a full year. Here are only a few countries in which you could visit: Australia, Barbados, Brazil, Chile, Cyprus, Denmark, Ethiopia, France, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, Japan, Laos, Monaco, Norway, Peru, Rhodesia, Spain, Turkey, United Kingdom, and Vietnam.

The AFS experience requires the student who:

—Likes and is sincerely interested in people.

—Is eager to learn from any experience he meets.

—Enjoys working.

—Can accept criticism and advice.

Requirements

The general requirements are that you must be attending a school which has received an AFS student from abroad.

The summer program takes place from June through September, with the stay abroad lasting from 6 to 10 weeks depending on the host country.

The school program students in the Southern Hemisphere leave in January, February, or March and return about a year later. The students in the Northern Hemisphere go abroad during the summer and return a year later.

Fee For Program

The participation fee for each program is $750.00. Costs in addition to the fee are: round trip travel and meals between the student's home and the U.S. port of embarkation (New York, Miami, San Francisco or Los Angeles); personal allowance for the period abroad, spending money between home and host country, and documents and inoculation fees.

The participation fee must be provided in full locally and must be guaranteed before any applications are accepted. The maximum personal allowance for the summer program is $5.00 weekly. The school allowance is determined between AFS and the host country and is usually no more than $240.00 a year.

The spending money for tips and personal expenses is about $30.00 for the round trip. AFS covers the round trip travel, meals, chaperone, orientation, and administrative expenses.

This is, of course, open to both boys and girls. Anyone interested should contact: Mrs. Laurin A. Wollan, 2125 Bates Ave., Springfield, Ill. or: Teen Scene Columnist, Junior Page

Jacksonville Journal Courier Jacksonville, Ill. 62650.

If you have a question, suggestion, gripe, or recipe you would like to share SEND THEM TO ME!

Bye

Then you land with a splash in the sparkling green sea. And you think things like that could never really be.

Susan Woodward, grade 6, Washington, Mrs. Coker, teacher.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

By STELLA
 SUNDAY, MAY 28 — Born today, you have been gifted with exceptional vitality of the sort that allows you to accomplish more in a day than many could in a week. Determined to succeed, you think nothing of missing meals, sleep and leisure if it means reaching your goal in record time. Take care, however, that in your rush for success you do not do injury to your health or, perhaps even more important, to your personal relationship with loved ones. You can be completely charming when you want to be — but generally you do not demonstrate this side of your nature unless by doing so you can gain some personal end. So long as those you are dealing with are not aware that your winning nature is on display in your own interests, all should go well; should it become obvious that you are less than sincere, however, you may be in unhappy circumstances for a long time. Placed in a position of authority, you are inclined to be a demanding taskmaster. However, since you never ask of others what you are not willing to give yourself, your relationship with those under you should be better than might be imagined. To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.
 Monday, May 29
 GEMINI (May 22 - June 21) — Careful planning will keep you from pointing your aspirations one way and your possibilities the other. Look before you leap!
 CANCER (June 22 - July 23) — A good day for making a friend of an enemy. Even strangers have plenty to offer you in the way of aid today.
 LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23) — A morning which could be well spent in fence-mending insofar as personal relationships are concerned. Give of yours.
 VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23) — Do not fall for any get-rich-quick schemes that may be presented. Learn from the mistakes of others and foes alike.
 LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23) — Too optimistic an outlook could cause you to turn in the wrong direction insofar as the morning's work is concerned. Take heed.
 SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) — Though real progress may not be obvious to you, it's going on, all the same. Stick to your present work for best results.
 SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22) — Intuition could well serve you best today as you make decisions regarding your future. How you "feel" about a job is most important.
 CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20) — Be on the alert for a contract possibility. This is an excellent day for getting ahead of competitors.
 AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19) — Basically a good day — but only if you aren't taken in by the false promises of others. Let your own good judgment reign.
 PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar. 21) — Stick close to familiar routine for best results today. You should be able to increase your popularity with others.
 ARIES (Mar. 22 - Apr. 20) — A blue Monday — but you needn't let it get you down if you don't give in to your mood. A day for giving your best — regardless.
 TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21) — Wishful thinking won't solve any employment problems. Get facts and figures well in hand and listen to all sides in a dispute.

Included among survivors are her husband and four sons. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at the Clugsten Memorial Home in Peoria with interment to be in a Peoria cemetery.
 CORRECTION
 A previous account of an accident which occurred Thursday evening at Pleasant View Trailer Court inaccurately stated that a car driven by Marie Shepard was backing from a drive when it collided with a southbound auto driver by John B. Martin of 1427 S. Main. Actually, the Shepard car was southbound and the Martin auto was moving backward. No tickets were issued.

Business — Market Wrapup

Week In Business

'Return To Tight Money Policy Not Necessary'

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The tightening money market drew watchful looks from businessmen and economists this past week.

But there was little apprehension that a money crisis like that of 1966 again was developing.

Economists noted that mortgage and bond yields were climbing as many banks shied away from making long-term loans.

On the other hand, interest rates on short-term loans continued to decline.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers, said he was disturbed by the recent tendency of interest rates to rise.

Commenting on the rise in long-term interest rates since mid-April, Ackley said institutional bond buyers appear to believe the Council of Economic Advisers when it predicts an upturn in business activity during the second half of this year.

He said he saw no necessity for a return to tight money conditions, and he praised the Federal Reserve Board for doing "an excellent job" in making bank credit available to the economy.

"I never like to predict interest rates," Ackley added, "but I see no reason for monetary policy to be different from what it has been, given proper fiscal policy."

Beginning last November, the Federal Reserve has acted to make money more plentiful and, therefore, cheaper. But some experts believe the Fed may have to pump still more cash into the economy if it hopes to drive the interest rates down.

They noted that Western Mortgage Corp., a big Los Angeles mortgage brokerage firm, recently raised rates on loans for the purchase of new single-family homes to 6 1/2 per cent from 6 1/4 per cent.

With banks not too anxious to make long-term loans at reasonable rates, corporations have been turning increasingly to the bond market. Yields of average grade corporate issues now run 5.95 per cent, compared with 5.20 per cent in early February.

Business seems willing to pay these rising costs to be sure of having substantial cash when they need it.

Among other developments this past week, the Labor Department reported that the cost of living rose 0.3 per cent in April to a record 115.3 per cent of the 1957-58 average. Higher costs of consumer services were mainly responsible for the rise.

The increase in the index brought wage increases of two cents an hour to 800,000 workers in the automobile industry, whose labor contracts have an escalator clause.

New orders for machine tools, a key indicator of future business prospects, fell 11 per cent during April to $101.1 million. Orders for metal-cutting tools were down 15 per cent from March to $83.85 million, which was 38 per cent below April 1966, when orders were at a near record high.

Industry sources said orders in recent months have been affected by suspension of the investment tax credit, which the Johnson administration is seeking to restore. House-Senate conferees agreed this past week on legislation restoring the incentives, and final approval is expected soon.

The Commerce Department reported that U.S. exports in April rose 3.5 per cent to $2.66 billion from $2.57 billion in March. Imports rose 1.8 per cent to $2.24 billion from $2.18 billion in March.

Automobile production this past week edged up to an estimated 175,400 passenger cars from 174,244 the previous week, but was 4 per cent below 182,939 a year earlier.

Steel production in the week ended May 20 edged up 0.2 per cent to 2,408,000 tons from 2,403,000 tons the previous week.

N.Y. Stock Market Suffers Effects Of Middle East Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week was afflicted by the middle east crisis and took its third straight weekly loss.

It was more a question of reluctance to buy than eagerness to sell, however, judging by the light trading.

Volume for the week was down to 46,458,080 million shares compared with 49,435,990 the week before. It was the smallest total since the week ended April 15 when 40 million shares changed hands.

The slow pace was unusual for 1967. As the week's trading drew near its end, the billionth share for 1967 was traded. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange seemed definitely headed for another historic record. Last year the billion-share milestone was not reached until June 23.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a moderate loss of 4.23 at 870.32. Thanks to a technical rally on Thursday, the Dow industrials ended the week much higher than their closing low of 862.42 on Wednesday.

The Wednesday close represented a decisive penetration of the theoretical support level of 875. According to chartists, this could mean a slide to another supposed support area around 855, but all of this is pure theory.

Although there was some apparent easing in the Israeli-Egyptian crisis on that day, the rebound was a natural development, coming as it did after six straight sessions of decline.

Of 1,596 issues traded last week on the New York Stock Exchange, 1,027 fell and 436 rose. This statistic was much more bearish than the averages themselves.

The Associated Press average of 60 stock took a slight loss of 1.0 at 323.7.

Further fears of tightening credit and high interest rates were a restraint on stock market buyers.

Prices in the long-term bond market were unchanged to slightly lower in an unsettled market.

Governments rallied late in the week for the third consecutive week but failed to offset earlier declines. It was the seventh consecutive weekly decline for long governments and brought most issues to within 2 points of their 1966 lows.

New corporate issue rates remained about unchanged for the second week, according to one leading Wall Street investment firm.

Wheat, Beans Gain In Week's Trading

CHICAGO (AP) — Increasing world tension, especially in the Middle East, influenced higher prices this week in wheat and soybeans futures on the Chicago Board of Trade.

World crises also tended to influence advances in corn, oats and rye prices, but these grains also were influenced by the weather.

When trade closed for the week, wheat futures were 1 1/4 cents a bushel higher, July 1.67 1/4-67; corn was 1 1/4 to 3/8 cents higher, July 1.35 1/4-3/4; oats were 2 1/4 to 2 1/2 cents higher, July 72 1/4-3/4; rye was 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents higher, July 1.24 1/4-3/4; and soybeans were 3/4 to 1/2 cents higher, July 2.85 1/4-3/4.

Soybean oil was 5 to 11 cents per contract lower, July 10.20-19 and soybean meal was 60 to 90 cents higher, July 72.50-45. Choice steers closed 3 to 13 cents higher for the week, June 26.22-25.

An indication of the nervous atmosphere that prevailed at the board during the week was the range over which the grains were traded. Wheat traded over a range of more than 7 cents, corn and soybeans 6 cents, oats and rye nearly 4 cents.

Wheat and soybeans were traded over a narrow range at the start of the week, but there was some rumbling in the Middle East between Israel and the Arab countries. When both sides began making military maneuvers futures advanced. With the intercession of the major powers and statements from each of them, prices declined. Several times the advance and decline of wheat and soybeans was motivated by war news within a single session.

At week's end, trading by speculators, commercial interests, commission houses and export traders was on a nervous and shaky basis.

The weather was a major factor in the fluctuations of corn, oats and rye futures.

Spring planting has been completed in nearly every state except in sections of northernmost states and over scattered portions of the eastern United States. Heavy rains in recent weeks have set back much of the corn planting. Oats and rye seeding also has been set back in some sections.

When word came out that some farmers in the eastern half of the country might divert acreage from corn to soybeans because of delayed planting, corn futures shot ahead nearly 4 cents a bushel Friday.

Earlier in the week, there was some question that rye planting might be held up by heavy fields in North and South Dakota, where most of this country's rye is grown. Rye futures advanced about 3 cents a bushel during one session, but fell back near the close for about a 2 cents gain.

Soybeans and derivatives, soy oil and meal, are widely used in the Middle East and when word of the crisis was made the prices of the commodities advanced. There was some lowering late in the week.

Treat For Vets

Legion Post In Charge Of Memorial Day Parade

American Legion Post No. 279 met at the Legion Home Tuesday evening, May 23rd. Commander Joe E. Palsgrove presided. Colors were posted by sergeant-at-arms Charles Quigg and the invocation was given by Chaplain Glenn E. Skinner.

Minutes were read by Adjutant Ed Brennan. Commander Palsgrove announced that the Legion will have charge of the Parade on Memorial Day, Tuesday, May 30. He asked all members to turn out and march, more particularly so this year in view of the Viet Nam situation, and "show the boys over there that we back home do care."

He also invited all veterans, regardless of Legion membership to join in the parade.

Sandwiches For Vets
The Post voted to have free fish sandwiches for veterans and their families after the parade, to be served at the Legion Home.

Commander Palsgrove stated flags will be placed on all veterans graves in all local cemeteries by the four local veterans groups. He stated that in case any grave is missed it would be appreciated if the family will call any of the veterans groups and so advise them, giving the exact location of the grave so a flag may be placed on the grave. He stated that some of the graves are unmarked and therefore it is greatly possible that some graves will be unintentionally missed.

School Award
School Medal Awards Chairman Lloyd F. Slagle stated the Post is giving out the School Medal Awards at the following schools:

Alexander Grade School was on May 17.
Illinois School for the Deaf, May 25.

Our Saviour's Grade School on May 31.
Jonathan Turner Grade School on June 2.

Illinois Braille & Sight Saving School on June 2.
Salem Lutheran School on June 2.

The 20th District Child Welfare Chairman stated that the annual Pilgrimage to Normal will be Sunday, June 11th.

Poppy Day was from 5:00 p.m. on Friday, May 26th, to 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, May 27th.

New Flag Pole
Is Tribute
To Veterans

Members of the Busy Bees 4-H club have erected a flag pole at the entrance to Concord cemetery, in tribute to the 90 veterans of various wars who are buried there.

Members of the club have, through the years, traditionally placed garden bouquets beside the small flags with which the American Legion marks veterans' graves on Memorial Day.

Since it has become increasingly difficult to identify many of the graves, club members decided to carry out a suggestion that one flag be placed at the cemetery entrance. The suggestion was made by Lawrence Powers of Concord and adopted as a club project.

The 4-Hers were aided in their project by several individuals who offered help. Part of the cost was defrayed with money the girls earned doing odd jobs on "Hobo Day."

On Memorial Day each year, club members hope, flags presented to the families of military veterans buried in the cemetery, may be flown at the entrance.

AILING SENIOR GRADUATES 'WITH CLASS'

Delbert Force, an outstanding athlete during his four years at Chandlerville High School, was felled by a virus attack during the last week of school and could not be present when his fellow seniors received their diplomas amid pomp and circumstance Thursday night.

Since the 18-year-old basketball, baseball and track star was unable to attend the ceremony, school officials took the ceremony to him. Immediately after graduation, members of the class, accompanied by principal Austin Herst and Miss Royce Ragland, class sponsor, gathered at the Force home where Delbert donned cap and gown and received his diploma from Eldon Herrmann, president of the board of education.

Earlier in the day, he received his school's "most valuable player" awards for both basketball and track from Chandlerville Coach Robert Gregurich as fellow team members looked on at his home.

Delbert, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Force, is now a patient at Holy Cross hospital where he is expected to remain under treatment for at least a week.

Summer Theater Project To Continue This Year

Plans have been finalized for "Summer Theater '67," a continuation of last year's Jacksonville summer theater project, according to Miss Geraldine Staley, Illinois College director of dramatics.

"Summer Theater '67" will lead off with the crackling comedy "Arsenic and Old Lace," followed by Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" and George and Ira Gershwin's musical "Girl Crazy!"

The producing company for "Summer Theater '67" will be essentially the same group which last summer brought Jacksonville "Ah, Wilderness!" "Harvey," and "Carnival."

Headed by Miss Geraldine Staley as managing director, the company includes Lee Cox of Jacksonville as director, Jim Reilly of Springfield as manager, Roger Woods of Perry as technical director and Mitch Hopper of Jacksonville as assistant technical director. Also in the company are Judy Smith of Buffalo, Sherri Choate, Lou Ann Clancy, Lauren Cox, Lynn Pearce, Jim Malone, Jr., and Connie Spaenower of Jacksonville. Sam Dietsch and John Carpenter of Chandlerville, Patty Smith of Waverly, Barb Rohde of Chicago, and Pete Gallatin of Lewisburg, Ohio.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" is scheduled for June 29, 30, July 1, and July 6-8. The famous comedy success produced on Broadway by Lindsay and Crouse concerns charming and innocent ladies, who populate their cellar with the remains of socially and religiously "acceptable" roomers: the antics of their brother, who thinks he is Teddy Roosevelt; and the "helpful" activities of another brother, who strives to bring order out of comic chaos.

"Blithe Spirit," written by Noel Coward, is scheduled for July 27-29 and August 3-5. It was a hit in its original New York and London appearances and has been a steady part of popular theater ever since.

"Blithe Spirit" tells the story of novelist Charles Condomine.

Beardstown — The late Hallie Seeger would never realize she was "home again" if she could step into her beloved Beardstown Library these days.

Hallie, of course, was librarian here for a half century, more or less, and held forth in the quiet precincts of the ornate old building like a queen. She had complete control over the youngsters who invaded the book bank, and she pretty well influenced the members of the library board in all they did to preserve and promote a somewhat neglected part of the city's contribution to the culture of its citizens.

In those days, of course, there was no government fund to draw on for expenses, and taxes barely did the job.

This is not to detract in any way from the near-accomplishment of the present board, which is now nearing completion of a wonderful improvement for Beardstown.

A complete renovation and remodeling of the main floor has been brought about—presently new furniture is being installed, fine carpeting has been put down, and general refurbishing from book stacks to chairs, tables and other equipment will give Beardstown one of the finest libraries in the state. We doff our hat with a deep bow in the direction of an energetic and wise board membership.

DRIVER FINED AFTER CAR HITS WATER HYDRANT
JERSEYVILLE — The case of The People vs. Raymond Maltimore, charged with leaving the scene of an accident, was called for hearing in the Jersey County Circuit Court Friday morning before Judge Howard Lee White. Maltimore appeared with his court appointed counsel, Attorney John F. Gibbons.

The original plea of not guilty was withdrawn and a plea of guilty entered. A fine of $15 and costs was assessed and the defendant was required to pay his attorney fee of $25 and damage to the water hydrant hit by Maltimore's car during a collision between his car and the object.

Subsequent to the collision, Maltimore called the local police station and reported that he had been sideswiped by another motor vehicle. State police officer Wilson Schultz investigated and later took Maltimore from his home in Kane to the county jail.

who considers himself a happily remarried widower until his first wife comes back to haunt him. As the first wife is lonely in the hereafter, she plots an accident for Condomine, which of course goes wrong, killing Ruth, the second wife. How the husband threads his way through two blithe spirits, accompanied by floating vases and charges of astral bigamy, provides endless opportunities for humor.

"Girl Crazy," the George and Ira Gershwin musical, will be presented August 23-26. It has been updated by Jack McGowan, the author of the original book, to include a television cowboy. Otherwise, the story still pokes fun at a would-be cowboy on an Arizona dude ranch who falls in love with the only girl within fifty miles, gets involved in local politics, and almost has to "shoot it out" on the main street. The score includes such time honored hits as "Embraceable You," "Bidin' My Time," "I Got Rhythm," and "Strike Up The Band."

According to James Reilly, manager of "Summer Theater '67," the company is independent of Illinois College in terms of resources. Anyone interested in helping in any way may contact him, in care of the college. Assistance in all categories ranging from fund-raising through acting is needed.

Same Library --New Look
By VIRGIL REITHER
BEARDSTOWN — The late Hallie Seeger would never realize she was "home again" if she could step into her beloved Beardstown Library these days.

Hallie, of course, was librarian here for a half century, more or less, and held forth in the quiet precincts of the ornate old building like a queen. She had complete control over the youngsters who invaded the book bank, and she pretty well influenced the members of the library board in all they did to preserve and promote a somewhat neglected part of the city's contribution to the culture of its citizens.

In those days, of course, there was no government fund to draw on for expenses, and taxes barely did the job.

This is not to detract in any way from the near-accomplishment of the present board, which is now nearing completion of a wonderful improvement for Beardstown.

A complete renovation and remodeling of the main floor has been brought about—presently new furniture is being installed, fine carpeting has been put down, and general refurbishing from book stacks to chairs, tables and other equipment will give Beardstown one of the finest libraries in the state. We doff our hat with a deep bow in the direction of an energetic and wise board membership.
